IN THE BEE TO-DAY

WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau.
Toledo, O., 8 a. m., March 3, 1892.

The local forecast for to-day is fair and warmer. For Friday fair, warmer; probably rain at night.

The "low" area or storm center which was barely outlined yesterday in Montana has assumed shape and movement and to-day is affecting the entire Rocky mountain region, and extends eastward into Nebraska (eastern).

This "low" is a shallow one of the spring type and liable to produce a long drizzling rain.

The high area in the St. Lawrence country is slowly diminishing, but still sufficiently high to continue good weather until Friday noon. The temperature Friday will be about 40 degrees, and the winds from sea to sea.

The lowest temperature reported this morning was zero in southern Canada; the lowest in the United States was 12 degrees at Oswego, N. Y.; the highest was 56 degrees at Galveston, Tex. The temperature throughout the country is rising under the influence of the storm in the west. Clear weather prevails except in the upper lake region and Dakota. The highest temperature in Toledo yesterday was 31 degrees; the lowest this morning was 19.

Washington, March 3.—Forecast for Ohio, Indiana and Illinois—Warmer; fair weather; southeasterly winds; increasing cloudiness, followed by threatening weather on Friday.

For Michigan and Wisconsin—Fair in southern, local snows in northern portion; southeasterly winds; warmer.

FARMER BLACKMAILED.

Cadiz, O., March 3.—John Compher, an aged farmer of Piedmont, this county, was swindled out of $500 by blackmailers. They claimed that he had written certain scurrilous letters and threatened him with prosecution, which so frightened him that he paid the $500 through fear of arrest. Young, one of the alleged blackmailers, was arrested and bound over to court.

TO PULL TOGETHER

Democrats at the National Capital

Paving the Way for Success at the Polls.

Hill, Whitney, Carlisle and Crisp

Hold a Very Interesting Executive Session.

Reported That Grover Cleveland Will Write a Letter Stating That He Is Not a Candidate for the Democratic Nomination.

New York, March 3.—The Recorder's Washington dispatch says: Wm. C. Whitney put in an appearance at the capitol yesterday afternoon. He did not make himself unduly conspicuous, but before he had been on the ground 10 minutes he was in consultation with Senator Carlisle.

A few minutes later Senator Hill was called into the conference. A note was then sent over to the house, and in another 15 minutes the three politicians were wending their way, at the invitation of Speaker Crisp, to the speaker's room, where Tom Murray had been directed to serve one of his excellent lunches.

Messrs. Whitney, Hill, Carlisle and Crisp remained in the speaker's room for an hour in strictly executive session, and at the close of the conference the ex-secretary departed from the capitol as unobtrusively as he came. Democratic leaders were left to conjure the significance of the conference.

"It seems," said one who is very near the throne, "that we are going to have harmony with a stuffed club. The party leaders in New York are becoming alarmed at the outlook, and the ex-secretary is believed to have come down to patch up a truce if possible."

Mr. Whitney is understood to have been the bearer of a message from Mr. Cleveland with references to the ex-president's intentions, and there was an apparently inspired report at the capitol yesterday afternoon that in a short time Mr. Cleveland will publicly announce his withdrawal from the race, at the same time issuing a manifesto defining his attitude on the silver and tariff questions, and calling upon the party to present a solid front for tariff reform, whoever the candidate may be.

Mr. Cleveland is also expected to repudiate the May convention.

LATE NEWS FROM CHILE.

The Indemnity Figures Take Their Breath Away.

The Government Officials Think the Price Asked Is Altogether Too High.

New York, March 3.—A Valparaiso dispatch to the Herald says: There is great anxiety here to learn if the United States government intends to ask Chile for all of the indemnity claimed by the Baltimore sailors.

The Chilean government has informed all inquirers that it has received no intelligence, officially, to the effect that such claims will be pressed by the United States. There is great surprise among bankers at the amount asked and much comment is heard on all sides. It is said that Chile would be very grateful if the United States would substitute a disinterested commission for the present official representative here to investigate the Baltimore affair and other questions.

The real cause for the resignation of several members of the cabinet last Saturday is said to be that only a few judges were appointed who belonged to the conservative party.

Charles Walker Martinez says that his reason for resigning was that he thought that the judiciary ought to have had more conservatives among its membership.

Isidor Errazuriz said he resigned because Chile would continue to witness these political crisises so long as the liberal party can not control a larger majority in congress.

There is a working conservative majority, while the liberal wing is split into three factions. President Montt's efforts to retain a homogeneous ministry is a thankless task.

WILL STAND BY HARRISON.

District Conventions in the Hoosier State.

The Federal Officers Are in Control and Benjamin Will Get the Delegates.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 3.—The district conventions to select delegates to the national republican convention will be held throughout the state to-day.

The friends of the president are very sanguine, and there is little doubt but he will be indorsed by every convention, and a solid Harrison delegation selected.

It is understood here that no contest will be made in any district, with the possible exception of the Twelfth, and even in the latter the effort to select opposition delegates is not regarded as at all likely to be successful.

There are a number of very strong Cullom men at Fort Wayne and in several other localities throughout the district, but the letter of Mr. Blaine declining to be a candidate appears to have taken all the spirit out of the opposition.

DAMAGED BY FIRE.

New York, March 3.—The Van Tassel & Campbell iron works in West Thirty-third street, and two adjoining tenements, have been damaged to the extent of $50,000 by fire. The occupants of the tenements escaped after an exciting experience.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Platte Centre, Neb., March 3.—Half of the business blocks of this city have been destroyed by fire. Loss $20,000.

The postoffice was destroyed with all the mail matter.

The same portion of the city was destroyed by fire four years ago this month.

OLD STEAMBOAT MAN DEAD.

Boonville, Mo., March 3.—Capt. Joe B. Kinney, at one time an old steamboat man and owner of several handsome boats on the Mississippi river, died at his home here, aged 84 years.

FOUND IN THE RIVER.

The Mysterious Disappearance of Dr. Mitter Explained.

Chicago, March 3.—The body of Dr. Robert G. Mitter, who mysteriously disappeared from his home, 12 West Thirteenth street, in this city a few days before Christmas last year, was found this morning in the river at the Twelfth street bridge.

It will be remembered that Dr. Mitter started out to buy some Christmas presents and was never thereafter seen alive by his friends.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Kansas City, March 3.—At 1 o'clock this morning a general alarm called out the entire fire department to the establishment of the Kansas City White Lead and Linseed Oil company.

The establishment occupied an isolated tract of ground and the fire was confined to the oil works, which were entirely consumed.

The loss is about $75,000; partially insured.

SERIES OF DISASTERS.

Wilmington, Del., March 3.—The British bark Orion and the American four-masted schooner Marguerite, in ballast from New York to Philadelphia, collided in Delaware bay. The latter lost her foremast head gear and bowsprit.

While being towed up the river she was blown ashore on the rocks at Fort Delaware and is now lying in six feet of water. She is in a very bad condition.

APPOINTED A DEMOCRAT.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—David McMullen, of Lancaster, was to-day appointed associate judge of Lancaster county, in place of Judge Patterson, deceased. Mr. McMullen, who is a democrat, will serve until next January under his commission.

WON BY THE MEN.

Shenandoah, Pa., March 3.—The strike at the Springdale colliery has been settled by the operators promising to pay the men what wages are due them for the two weeks worked and by announcing that they will continue to pay semi-monthly as before.

POLICEMAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE

A Family Jar That May End in Murder.

The Woman Defended Herself With a Lighted Lamp and Set Fire to the House.

Camden, N. J., March 3.—Howard Mason, of Camden, a former Philadelphia policeman, early this morning shot his wife and cut her throat.

He went home at 2 o'clock and found a strange man in the house with another woman, and Mason's wife, who was in bed. He fired his revolver at the stranger.

His wife threw a lamp at him, setting fire to the bed.

He continued to empty his revolver, and then cut his wife's throat.

The blaze from the burning bed called out the fire department. The fire was extinguished without loss.

Mason surrendered and was locked up with Mrs. Helen Walker and Henry Shakey, the two who were in the house.

Mrs. Mason was taken to the hospital dangerously injured. She is not dead. The husband expresses no remorse for his act.

VITRIOL THROWER ARRESTED.

Akron, O., March 3.—Catherine Mehrle, the woman of sixty-five summers who was suspected of throwing the vitriol into the face of William Belke, nineteen years of age, was arrested on the charge of "assault with vitriol" and locked up at the central.

She stoutly denies that she committed the terrible act, but her face and hands bear evidence of having been touched by some corrosive substance. Belke is suffering greatly from the burns. The sight of his left eye is destroyed, and his recovery is doubtful.

BIG BLAZE IN DETROIT.

Three Hundred Thousand Dollar Fire.

A Five Story Brick Building, With Its Valuable Contents, Leveled to the Ground.

Detroit, March 3.—The five-story brick building on West Larued street, occupied jointly by William Reid, wholesale dealer in stained and plate glass, paints and oils, and the Detroit Fruit Tablet and Confectionary company, was burned.

The building destroyed belonged to David Whitney and the loss on it will be $50,000; insured.

William Reid's stock was worth at least $130,000 and insured for $110,000. Owing to the nature of the stock it is a complete loss.

The confectionery company's stock was damaged about $10,000.

The neighboring buildings were also somewhat damaged.

The entire loss is nearly $300,000, on which there is $141,000 insurance.

Falling Walls.

Detroit, March 3.—While the firemen were playing this morning on the ruins of William Reid's glass warehouse, on West Larned street, which burned last night, a joist broke, carrying down to the ground floor a portion of the fourth floor, upon which the men were at work.

All but one of the firemen landed on top of the debris. Captain Haven escaped without injury. Lieut. Cansley had his knees badly bruised and Pipeman Oscar Reidy received a scalp wound. Pipeman Charles H. Vyse was badly cut and bruised and perhaps received internal injuries. He and Causley were taken to Grace hospital. Pipeman William Dungerew was not so fortunate. He fell under a mass of smoking ruins. The firemen worked desperately and after 15 minutes' hard work extricated him from his terrible position. He is probably fatally injured.

RAILROAD STATION BURNED.

Newburyport, Mass., March 3.—The Boston & Maine railroad station here was completely destroyed by a fire that originated in the bagage room from some unknown cause, at 12:50 a. m. The loss is estimated at $25,000; insured.

SHOT BY HIS WIFE.

Sensation in Detroit Last Night.

Mrs. Charles N. Ayer Sends a Bullet Through Her Husband After Failing to Get a Divorce.

Detroit, March 3.—Charles N. Ayers was shot and mortally wounded last night by his wife, whose suit for divorce was dismissed yesterday on a technicality.

Ayers last evening went to his home to get some goods. His daughter remonstrated with him, but in vain, and an hour later the wife returned.

She and her husband had some words and a shot was heard. He emerged upon the porch, she following with a smoking revolver in her hand. Her first shot had missed and she leveled the weapon at him again, sending a ball through his left lung and mortally wounding him.

BLAINE PLAYING POSSUM

Many Believe He is Still in the Race,

And For That Reason Attacked Alger.

Mrs. Blaine, Sr., Seems to be Running His Campaign and Also the Whole Blaine Family.

Washington, March 3.—While it must be admitted that everything is not lovely from a democratic standpoint in national politics at the present time, still it is cheerfully admitted here that the republican position is considerably more entangled and embarrassed.

Harrison seems to be in the position that Arthur was in 1884. The chiefs of the party are against him, swearing that they will beat him, and undoubtedly mean to keep their word if they can.

Harrison is now duck shooting on the Virginia coast, the guest of some of the fine old Bourbons of that state, who do not care to take politics into their shooting and social existence. Foster, the secretary of the treasury, is on his way to Europe in search of health, and Steve Elkins in the meantime is in charge of the renominating campaign.

Steve is very much embarrassed. The Blaine ghost will not down. It keeps cropping up from time to time, and your correspondent has been informed on good authority that the Harrison people have been informed that Blaine at least will be given the honor of declining a nomination if he desires to do so.

This means that his friends will insist upon nominating him whether he will accept the nomination or not and give him a chance to decline or accept, as his feelings at the time suggest. This causes Elkins a good deal of trouble. He is trying to be a friend of both and a confidant of both, and to be, when the last ballot is taken in the national convention, on the winning side. This is what is troubling Stephen. He is anxious to be on the winning side.

A curious story is now in circulation concerning Blaine's letter, in which he declared that his name would not be presented to the national convention.

At a dinner party, a private dinner party it might be said, held at one of the leading social establishments of Washington, at which Mrs. Blaine and her cousin, Miss Dodge, more generally known as Gail Hamilton, were guests, Mrs. Blaine and Miss Dodge both declared that the first they knew of Blaine's letter to Clarkson was when they saw it in the papers.

At the same party both Mrs. Blaine and Miss Dodge smiled at the idea that some people had in their minds that Mr. Blaine was not in the presidential contest. They said that Mr. Blaine was not a candidate and he would not ask anybody to vote for him or support him; that he would not have any of his friends present his name formally to the convention, but—and there ought to be a great deal of emphasis placed on the but—if the convention should nominate him for president it would be a different thing.

Mr. Elkins is well aware of this feeling on the part of the Blaine family, and hence the bitter pill of trouble that threatens to make him round-shouldered. It is not often that the adjective weary qualifies the proper noun Elkins, but just now Stephen seems to be weary all the same.

Foster is undoubtedly the ablest politician of the administration, but he is away. Elkins is a field marshal, not a strategist. He can make the deals and put up jobs and things of that kind, but he has not the native ability to plan a broad campaign himself. Blaine is well aware of this and hence his ready assent to Elkins' entrance to Harrison's cabinet.

Blaine knew that Steve's tact was entirely confined to execution and not to original planning, and Blaine would much rather have the execution of the enemy's project placed in the friendly hands of Steve than in the hands of anybody else whom he did not absolutely own. Steve has issued a general order, so to speak, to every office-holder in the United States to take an active and aggressive part in the primaries, in the conventions and caucus for the selection of delegates to the national convention. This order pertains to the south more generally, and hints have been thrown out that if the southern office-holders are not active and vigilant they will be displaced.

William Pitt Kellogg, ex-governor and ex-senator of Louisiana, arrived here after a six weeks' trip to Louisiana. Kellogg lives here, and only returns to Louisiana to fix up delegations to the national convention every four years.

Kellogg is very much opposed to Harrison's renomination. He says that the terrorism now exercised by the administration over the federal office-holders of the south was never dreamed of, even in the days of reconstruction.

Kellogg's friend, Wimberly, who was collector of customs for the Mississippi and Louisiana district, was fired a few days ago because he was opposed to sending a delegation pledged to support Harrison from Louisiana. This was the only charge made against Wimberly.

It is said that he was efficient in the conduct of his business; that his accounts were in good condition, and that as a general rule the people were rather satisfied with his administration of his office, but he preferred to support his old friend Kellogg in sending a Blaine delegation from Louisiana, and the consequence is that he is now a private citizen.

A little circular setting forth the fate of Wimberly has been prepared by Elkins and is now in process of transmission to every office holder, big and little, in the southern states. It is in the nature of a warning to them that unless they stand up to Harrison fair and square and aggressively they will meet his fate.

In the meantime everything is not lovely in Maine. It seems that Tom Reed's friends in that state accepted Blaine's "letter of declination," as it was called, literally. Now while Blaine was undoubtedly the absolute boss of Maine for a great many years, he has not been taking an active part of late, while on the contrary Reed, after he was made speaker of the Fifty-first congress, began to loom up immensely.

There are no two men in public life who so cordially hate each other as Blaine and Reed. Blaine, who is very guarded, does not, as a general rule, give expressions to his hatred of Reed, except to his very close and intimate friends.

Reed, however, is candid and open, and makes no attempt to conceal his cordial detestation of Blaine, and never misses an opportunity to sneer at the secretary of state personally, socially and politically.

Boutelle and Dingley, of the Maine delegation, think that if Blaine is out of it, Maine ought to present Reed to the national convention. Seth Milliken is still loyal to Blaine and will not join in the Reed demonstration.

Dingley and Boutelle have been urging their Maine friends to send a delegation friendly to Reed to the national convention. They have prepared a little circular about the matter in which Blaine's letter to Clarkson is quoted. They say in the circular that Blaine not being a candidate, that Reed ought to be supported by the state.

This has angered the Blaine people, and it is understood that Joe Manley is now running through Maine trying to counteract the effect of the Reed circular by saying that Blaine would not decline a nomination, although not a candidate.

In this connection another interesting observation is in order. It has leaked out within the last three of four days that it was Blaine's friends, and not Harrison's, that trotted out and exposed Alger's military record.

It will be remembered that the New York Sun made public this record. The Sun is Blaine's favorite organ. The object of the Blaine people in doing up Alger at this early stage was to make it more incumbent on the opponents of Harrison to consider Blaine a necessity if Harrison cannot be nominated.

The Harrison people were nursing the Alger record, and were figuring on springing it on the public a week or so before the national convention convened.

The Blaine people, however, got the start of them, and by publishing Alger's record successfully disposed of him as a possibility, and, therefore, as the Blaine managers predicted and had planned, the opponents of Harrison are now more than ever dependent upon Blaine in their desire to beat Harrison's renomination. It will be seen from this that the republican complications are more serious than those affecting the democrats.

MARRIED AN HEIRESS,

And It Caused a Great Sensation.

Waterbury, Conn., March 3.—The marriage of Miss Mary J. Hemmingway, daughter of a wealthy resident of Waterbury, Conn., to George V. Gardner, of New York, has caused a sensation here.

The fact that the bride immediately after the wedding returned to her home while the husband went to New York, and that neither the bride nor the groom have seen each other since, leads to the belief that the marriage was an elopement, and that the parents of the young woman are trying to have the marriage annulled on the ground that she is not of marriageable age.

BOY BURGLAR SHOT.

Atlanta, Ga., March 3.—Harry Gray, son of a prominent citizen of this city, was fatally shot last night by a policeman while in the act of robbing a neighbor's house.

The boy had always borne a good reputation before. He is but 18 years old.

ANOTHER TEXAS TRAGEDY.

Bloody Butchery Reported From Sherman.

A Suspected Person Arrested by a Mob After a Most Exciting Chase.

Sherman, Tex., March 3.—A bloody tragedy is reported to have occurred on Monday night near this city at the home of Wm. Smith. Sherman is greatly agitated over the affair.

A negro named Sam Massey, who lived near Smith's and was suspected, has been arrested after a hot pursuit by an excited mob.

Massey says he knows nothing of the murders, but there is blood on his clothing. Wm. Smith's father tells the following story of the affair:

On Monday night one of his little grandchildren stayed at his house all night. She went home in the morning, but soon returned greatly frightened and cried out: "Papa and mama and my two brothers have been killed.'

Mr. Smith hurried to his son's house, where a terrible sight confronted him. Lying in pools of blood on the floor were Mr. Smith and his wife. They were insensible. Near by was one of the little boys. He was terribly injured, but able to say: "Sam did it with a piece of iron." The other inmates were also cut and bruised and the walls were splashed with blood. None of the victims were able to tell the story of the crime.

RUMORS OF BIG DEALS.

Railroad Just Now Are Under Suspicion.

The Delaware and Hudson System the Object of Much Interest at Present.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—The rumors affecting a lease or sale of the Delaware & Hudson railroad system are still in the air, but it is difficult to find the foundation for such reports.

Mr. Edwin Young, attorney for the road, was seen to-day, but he said he knew nothing about the matter. He did not believe there was anything in it.

In his private opinion, Mr. Young declared, he did not believe the Delaware & Hudson officials had conferred or negotiated with the representatives of any other road relative to entering into an arrangement with them.

He thought the talk of a lease being procured by the Pennsylvania or Central roads was all talk and not likely to be productive of anything.

As to the reports of the sale of the road, there was little more to say. A purchase can be effected by buying up the stock, but he knew nothing of any such project.

Mr. Young said that he thought the foundation for the agitation of the matter lay in the uneasy feeling prevailing in speculative circles due to the recent big coal combination.

Some people had been surprised when that combination had been brought about and thought the Delaware & Hudson should be in something of the sort, hence they were taking it for granted that something was on foot.

TIFFIN MAN MISSING.

Charles Towne, the Circus Clown Has Disappeared.

His Family and the Elks Making An Effort to Locate Him—He's Been Gone Four Weeks.

Tiffin, O., March 3.—Charles Towne, a circus clown who is known the country over by the name of "Charley Madden," is mysteriously missing and his wife and little daughter, who reside in this city, are seriously alarmed for his safety.

He left the city four weeks ago for the purpose of going to Chicago, since when nothing has been heard of him. He is a member of the local lodge of Elks and that organization is using every effort to ascertain his whereabouts. The cause of his prolonged absence is a mystery. His family relations were supposed to be of most amiable character and no reason can be assigned for his disappearance unless it be that he has met with foul play.

CHICAGO MEANS BUSINESS.

You Can't Monkey with the Band Wagon There.

The City Deals Vigorously with Corporations Which Fail to Respect the People's Rights.

Chicago, March 3.—As a result of the recent purchase of a controlling interest in the Economic Fuel Gas company by gas trust stockholders, Mayor Washburn, after a long consultation with Corporation Counsel Miller, has instructed Commissioner Aldrich to notify the Economic company that the city is in possession of the company's pipes now laid in the streets.

The mayor in an interview a day or two ago gave it as his opinion that the Economic company had forfeited its rights and plant and expressed himself in favor of using the pipes now laid as a nucleus for a municipal gas company.

LYNCHED BY A MOB.

Cairo, Ill., March 3.—Amos Miller, who assisted in the killing of Mayor Cooper and Marchal Sprinkle at Dexter last Saturday, was taken from the jail here last night by a mob of 200 men from Malden and Bloomfield, Mo., and hanged to a tree.

MADE A CLEAN HAUL.

Safe Blowers Do a Successful Turn.

Coldwater, Mich., Touched for a Large Sum.

They Used Dynamite But Did Not Succeed in Awakening Anybody in the Sleepy City.

Detroit, March 3.—A special to the News from Coldwater, Mich., says: The Coldwater National bank was robbed last night. The estimated loss is $20,000.

The robbers drilled the outer door of the vault and with a punch broke the lock off. The middle door was secured with a padlock. This was probably borken with a sledge. The inside vault contained one burglar-proof, combination lock safe, and also a steel safe with time lock. These were drilled and charged with dynamite. The doors of both safes were blown completely off.

The concussion shattered the wooden shelves inside the vault and scattered the contents of the safes and the shelving about the floor. There was no one sleeping in the bank and no one heard the explosion.

The discovery of the robbery was not made until the bank was opened this morning. There is no clue t othe robbers.

The robbers took every bit of cash, including bills, silver and pennies, they could find. They also secured $40,000 Philadelphia & Reading railroad bonds, a private deposit.

The burglars gained access to the bank by prying up an outside window.

HUNTING FOR SAM MASSEY.

A Mob Would Like to String Him Up.

He Assaulted the Family of William Smith and Left Four of the Members for Dead.

Sherman, Tex., March 3.—Last night a mob of 500 citizens made an attempt to take Sam Massey, the negro, from the jail where he is confined on suspicion of having wounded the Smith family on Monday night.

The party advanced towards the jail, with guns and revolvers, and met with no opposition when they demanded the keys from the jailor.

It was soon made apparent that Massey had been spirited away and all efforts to find him proved of no avail.

William Smith, the head of the family, has been restored to consciousness and says Massey is the guilty party. Physicians have little hopes that the victims will recover. The mob has not yet given up hopes of finding the negro, and the search is being continued. He is charged with beating almost to death the four members of Wm. Smith's family.

WORST IN YEARS.

Massachusetts in the Grasp of a Blizzard.

Gloucester, Mass., March 3.—The severe storm, which is the worst seen in this vicinity since the disastrous one of 1879, continues to-day with blinding snow and extreme cold.

BLAINE IN BED AGAIN.

The Secretary of State Again Taken Ill.

The Cold Weather of Yesterday Too Much for a Man in His Physical Condition to Stand.

Washington, March 3.—Secretary Blaine is confined to his bed to-day by a severe cold which he caught yesterday by exposing himself to the inclement weather.

THE WHISKY CASES.

They Will Be Carried to the Supreme Court.

Boston, March 3.—Mr. C. A. Prince, attorney for the defendants in the whisky trust cases, says that if the decision in the court here is against them they will appeal to the United States supreme court.

They are not conducting a trust but a company which owns and has paid for certain property. It does not control the entire output, is not a monopoly and has not conspired against competitive interests.

Mr. Prince does not think the cases will come up Monday, as there has not been time to prepare them.

MEANS CERTAIN DEATH.

A Mob in Charge of a Negro Fiend.

Florence, Ala., March 3.—Posses have been scouring this section for a negro who brutally beat and nearly killed two white women near Waynesboro, Tenn., yesterday because they would not give him money.

This morning he was captured seven miles from Florence and brought to town. A number of men from the scene of the deed who were looking for him at once took charge of him and started back to Waynesboro, the men remarking as they started off, "He will not bother any more white women."

The negro will be hung before reaching Waynesboro.

ANOTHER GOLD STRIKE.

Denver, Col., March 3.—Another big strike was made in the superior mine on Gold Hill at the head of Squaw Gulch in the Cripple Creek gold district yesterday afternoon.

A chunk of ore weighing over 150 pounds was brought down to Fremont last night and it is literally covered with flakes of gold.

WON BY FITZSIMMONS.

Peter Maher Not in the Contest at Any Time.

The Australian Too Much for the Irishman.

One of the Best and Fairest Contests Ever Held in the Ring—Neither Side Makes Complain..

The great Fitzsimmons-Maher fight is over and the Australian has won. Maher proved himself to be a good man in the ring but the Australian proved to be a better one. The fight has been looked forward to in sporting circles as an event of much interest. Maher went in on the Sullivan style and failed to make his points, while Fitzsimmons' fighting showed plainly that he had picked up many points since his fight with Dempsey.

The two combatants entered the ring in New Orleans exactly at 9 o'clock—Peter Maher first, dressed in black trousers with black stockings and black fighting shoes.

Gus Tuthill, Billy Madden and Jack Fallon were his seconds. Fitz entered a moment later and grasped Maher's hand, and was cheered to the echo for so doing. Jimmy Carroll followed his principal's example. Madden was as pale as death during the preparation for the fight. The usual parley in the center of the ring took in one of the greatest pugilistic parties over seen, and the good fellowship that marked the opening chat elicited very favorable comment. Both men were stripped to the waist. Fitz wore a scarlet breechcloth with black fighting shoes and black stockings. Official weights announced were: Fitzsimmons, 165; Maher, 178. Time was called at 9:15, and the men met in the center of the ring.

First Round.

Fitz opened the ball by feinting Maher. The latter made two left leads for the face and Fitz countered on the eye. Maher made another lead with the left, but missed. Both men missed lefts and Fitz jabbed his left glove into Maher's nose. Fitz knocked Maher down with a right under the jaw and landed his left on Maher's nose; when Maher got up Fitz staggered Maher with another left and repeated it a mometn later with the right. Maher bled freely from the mouth, and knocked Fitz down as time was called. This was a terrible round, and both men were carried to their corners. Honors even.

Round 2—Fitz assayed the left and Maher ducked. Both were cautious and both missed face blows. Maher landed heavy left on the body, and repeated it in the ribs with the right. Fitz landed a heavy left on Maher's ear and jabbed his left into Maher's bloody mouth. Maher bled profusely from his mouth, but landed again with the left on Fitz's body. Both landed heavy hits and Maher landed a heavy blow on Fitz's ear and the latter ran away. Both men landed right and left and Fitz staggered his man with a left in the mouth. Fitz jabbed his left repeatedly into Maher's bloody mouth, and both men went to their corners very weak. Honors still easy though Fitz appeared to be the cleverer of the two.

Round 4—Maher still bled from the mouth and Fitz aimed for the cut spot. Fitz landed the left on Maher's nose and avoided two blows aimed at his body. Maher landed a left on the nose, but got the same a moment later. Fitz landed right and left on Maher's head. Maher landed a heavy heart punch with his right and received in return a staggerer on the cut mouth from the Australian's left. Maher was trying for a right cross counter and landed a good left upper cut. Fitz landed two heavy straight lefts on the mouth and Maher presented the sight of a beaten up man. This round was all in Fitz's favor.

Round 5—The men met in the center of the ring again; sparred for a few moments and Fitz landed a heavy left, but received the same a moment later. Maher landed a heavy right-hander heart punch, and Fitz immediately ducked away, both lefts on the face, but Fitz put two heavy lefts on Maher's bloody mouth a moment later. Both landed heavy lefts and Maher staggered his man with a left on the jaw. Maher tried the left for the jaw again and Fitz staggered, going to his corner as the round ended.

Round 6—Maher tried with the left and Fitz ran away. The men landed heavy lefts and Fitz received a left upper-cut as he ran away from Maher. Maher landed a left upper-cut as Fitz ducked to avoid punishment. Fitz was playing continually for Maher's sore mouth, and frequently pushed the later's head back with straight lefts. Fitz staggered Maher with a heavy right-hander on the jaw and ran away to avoid punishment. Fitz now landed a left on Maher's nose. Time called. Honors easy again.

Round 7—Both men stepped to the center briskly and Fitz landed a left stomacher. Both landed on the head and Maher flung his right lightly on his opponents ribs. Fitz cleverly ducked, pulled himself out of a tight corner into which the Irishman had placed him. The latter, however, reached a heavy pivot blow which was not barred in the agreement. It was a heavy blow on the neck and drew forth objections from Maher's corner; the Irishman landed a heavy right on Fitz's jaw, got in too close and received two heavy lefts in the mouth. Fitz now lands a left on Maher's jaw.

Round 9—Maher appeared rather weak, still trying for the right. He landed a moment later, but received the left heavy on the nose. Fitz ducked neatly out of a corner, but received a right upper cut on the ribs, which made him grunt. Maher's left leads for the head fell short and he wasted a great deal of his strength by missing frequent blows. Fitz landed two lefts on the nose, was perfectly cool and avoided several heavy swings. The Australian laughed and chatted with his opponent in this round, and really looked like a winner. He now landed a light jab on the nose as time was called.

Round 10—Maher's left missed again and so did his right for the ribs; he got a left on the nose from Fitz's forearm, but landed a heavy right on Fitz's jaw. It was anybody's fight now from appearances, though Fitz landed a left on the sore mouth. Maher aimed a heavy right for the body, but struck the point of Fitz's left elbow. The latter immediately sent in a heavy blow on the sore mouth and clinched; a well-meant right slipped off Fitz's jaw and Maher missed a right and left swing for the head. Maher was bleeding again as time was called. Honors were still easy, and, barring a knock-out blow, it looked like Fitz's battle.

Round 11—Fitz landed a light left and avoided Maher's right in return. Both landed light lefts and Fitz avoided two right swings intended for the stomach. Fitz hit Maher a heavy right in the jaw and avoided a return blow. Both men were cautious. Fitz feinted to draw Maher on, the latter trying a right on the body. It met only Fitz's elbow. Fitz landed a left on the sore mouth again, but got a stinging right on the back of his head. Fitz staggered his opponent with a heavy left and jabbed the same hand under the sore nose and mouth again as time was called. This was Fitz's round.

Round 12—Fitz's stock went up as the battle progressed, and his left shot into Maher's sore mouth again, the blood responding freely; the Australian was taking it easy now, seemingly feeling secure. Maher's head went back twice with two heavy lefts and the Australian slipped away to avoid punishment. The Irishman staggered in response to two heavy blows and played groggy to draw Fitz. The latter would none of him, however, until he with the same left again hit the sore mouth and Fitz's stock rose above par. Maher staggered as he went to his corner and gave up the battle.

Fitzsimmons' Courtesy.

Fitzsimmons fought a fair fight and offered a flask to his beaten opponent. Fitzsimmons took a hearty pull himself of the red stuff and then congratulated Maher on his game fight.

The cheering for Fitzsimmons was deafening in the extreme, and the same merciful methods that marked his fight with Dempsey were offered again to the Irish champion. The decorum was wonderful and stamps again the Olympic's great name for fairness and managerial ability.

Some people commented on Maher's courage when he gave up the fight, but it is only reasonable to think that he should have done so when the superior science and generalship of the man from Australia is called to mind. Fitzsimmons walked around the ring receiving congratulations of his friends. He certainly proved a wonderful fighter and his cleverness with both hands was really marvelous and it is but fair to say that there are few tricks in the ring and few hits that Fitzsimmons is unacquainted with.

After the fight the leading sporting men present, fighters, newspaper men, sports, and others gathered in the rooms of the Olympic and discussed the merits of the men. Charley Mitchell and Slavin were together. Said Mitchell, with emphasis, when asked his opinion:

"Maher ought to be ashamed to own himself an Irishman, and Irishmen ought to be ashamed that he is one of them. He is the most cowardly fighter, to my mind, that ever stepped into the ring. Fitzsimmons, on the other hand, is a wonderfully clever fighter and a surprise."

"I agree with that opinion," chimed in Slavin, who was standing near. "I knew Maher wouldn't win, because Madden was behind him. Fitzsimmons is very clever and shifty, and handled himself very cleverly from start to finish. I am more than pleased at the result. Maher is a man who is built up and advertised on the achievements of other people."

Both Mitchell and Slavin agreed in saying that the fight, on its conduct, was the finest that they ever witnessed in this or any other country. James Hall, Fitzsimmons' old enemy, sat in a front seat and watched the fight with Parson Davies. When it was over he said: "It was a very good contest indeed."

Referee Duffy was equally laconic. "I think Maher lost because he is a fighter that cannot stand punishment," was the opinion he expressed of the contest.

Billy Myer, the street cyclone, said it was a good fight and he believed Maher was a fair fighter. In his opinion, however, it was Fitzsimmons' fight after the first round.

Lou Housman, of Chicago, who saw all the glove fights of the generation, considered the contest similar to a match between a selling plater and a stake horse. He did not think Fitzsimmons should have been hit at all.

Tom Allen, the ex-champion heavyweight, had this to say: "Maher was never in it, from opening to the close.

Peter Maher.

He is very slow when compared with Fitz, while the Australian is a wonderfully clever man, especially so in avoiding punishment. I believe that Maher was bothered from the first round."

Sporting Life Representative Gallagher, of London, thought the fight was the best-regulated tournament he had ever attended. He sent bulletins of the fight to London, and got word from England that Fleet street was packed with people eager for news. He thinks Fitzsimmons showed surprising ability in getting away from Maher, and said the Australian won simply because he was the better man of the two.

Fitzsimmons, as soon as the battle was over, danced around the ring with delight. The crowd pressed around him and nearly shook his hands off. He was unmarked and as chipper as a bird. When he succeeded in tearing himself away from his enthusiastic friends, he pushed his way through the crowd and went to his room, where, without assistance, he quickly donned his street clothes.

He was in the best of humor, but had nothing to say except that he was satisfied and believed beforehand that he would win. He did not remain any length of time at the club, but with his party entered a carriage and drove uptown, promising to call in the morning for the big end of what he fought for—the purse.

After the fight the gloom in Maher's quarters was thick enough to cut with a knife. Maher remained in the ring some time after the battle was over, while his seconds washed the blood from his face. His corner after the fight resembled a slaughter pen.

When he reached his room he put on his clothes and stuffed a moist handkerchief into his mouth to stop the flow of blood. Madden, Holland, Tuthill and others were with him, and they were cast down over the result. Madden said: "Fitzsimmons punched him in one place all the time.

"The blood was flowing from Maher's mouth and was choking him in the eleventh round," continued Madden. "I saw he had no chance to win and told him he had better quit. It was no use to go on. If the fight had continued Maher would have been put out completely, and there was no need for that. Our man was not in as good condition as he ought to have been, but of course that is no excuse now.

"We had plenty of time to get ready and ought not to complain," concluded Madden. "The fight was perfectly fair. We have no complaint to make, for it was satisfactorily contested and squarely lost. We shall stay here a day or two and then go home."

Maher's upper lip was puffed out and he looked the picture of woe. "I have very little to say," Maher replied to an inquiry, "except that Fitzsimmons was too clever for me. He was very skillful in getting away. I had him out in the first round, but the bell prevented me from finishing him. Fitzsimmons is a nice, clean, gentlemanly fighter."

"Maher broke a blood vessel and the blood choked him," said Billy Macey. "He could not go further because he was unable to breathe. That is the whole story. We have been whipped and are sorry for it. We have no fault to find with the contest."

* * * *

The big league of base ball clubs have adopted a national agreement. The drafting matter was finally settled by voting to divide the minor leagues into two classes, to be known as "A" and "B." The former pays $150 for protection and gets $1,000 for any player drafted; the latter pays $75 and gets $500 for a drafted player. Drafting can only be done between October 1 and February 1.

The Western association agreed to do away with two of the most objectionable rules, namely: Compelling players to purchase their own uniforms and charging them 50 cents per day while on a trip. The Eastern association also decided to make its playing season from May 1 to October 1. The Eastern assoociation will meet in Rochester March 9.

The committee on rules then made its report. The principal contest in the committee room was on the proposed change from four balls entitling a batsman to first base to three balls. Messrs. Reach, of Philadelphia, and Brush, of Cincinnati, favored it, while Van Derhorst, of Baltimore, opposed it. When the matter came up before the league the change was beaten by a vote of 10 to 2. The following playing rules were then made:

The players' bench shall be 25 feet back from the base lines.

Rule 26—If a team resorts to dilatory practice for the purpose of having the game called on account of darkness or rain, the umpire may forfeit the game to the club not at fault.

Added to rule 30—Provided, a ball so delivered that it touches the bat of the batsman in his position, shall be counted a ball and in play.

Rule 38—If a ball strike a fence less than 125 feet from the home plate the batsman shall be entitle to only two bases.

Add to section 4, rule 44—"His person, except hand or forearm, which makes a dead ball."

Added to rule 50—"And not more than two coachers, who may be one of the players in the game and any one in the uniform of the club at bat shall be allowed at any one time."

Rule 53—The umpire is the sole and absolute judge of plays. In no instance shall any person be allowed to question the correctness of his decision on a play, and no player shall leave his position in the field, bases or bench, to approach or advise the umpire, except to show playing rules, and then only by the captain. No manager or any officer shall go on the field under penalty of forfeiture of the game.

Added to section 2, rule 53—"He shall also receive from the captains their respective batting orders, which, when approved, shall be followed as provided by rule 19."

Added to section 8, rule 68—"If a base runner advances a base on a fly out or gains two bases on a single base hit, or an infield out, or attempted out, he shall be credited with a stolen base, provided there is a possible chance and an effort made to retire him."

It was 7 o'clock when the meeting was finally adjourned, to meet to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

ARBITRATION BOARD,

Of New York, About Ready to Report.

Good Work Has Been Done and the Figures Will Prove Interesting Reading.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—The annual report of the state board of arbitration will soon be ready for the printer and will form an interesting story of the strikes of the year in a large number of which the board has mediated to the general satisfaction of employer and employed.

The report shows that the number of strikes during the year was 6,258, and that of that number the board had the satisfaction of seeing 5,433 settled, a large number through the recommendation of the board.

Four hundred and sixty-four of the strikes were abandoned.

The strikes were mainly on the two accounts of wages and hours of labor, although in a few instances, such as the famous Rochester clothing cutters' strike, the trouble was caused by other reasons.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS.

Topeka, Kas., March 3.—The republican state league convention was attended by 1,000 delegates, every county being represented. The old wheel horses of the party say it means a weakening of the people's party strength.

Resolutions were adopted indorsing the administration of President Harrison.

FAILURE ANNOUNCED.

Boston, March 3.—The firm of Hobbs & Taylor of this city have assigned, the cause thereof being, it is said, the sudden disappearance of Horatio A. Hobbs, of the firm, last Friday night. The liabilities are about $7,000; assets small.

A GOVERNMENT VICTORY.

London, March 3.—The house of commons has rejected, by a vote of 227 to 174, a bill to extend to certain evicted tenants the benefit of last year's land act. The government opposed the measure.

THIS IS CRUEL, JOHN.

Sherman Writes a Letter to Cincinnati

In Which He Scores the Cox Combination.

The Sage From Mansfield Does Not Like Bosses in Politics When They Are Opposed to Him.

Cincinnati, March 3.—Senator Sherman has written a letter addressed to the chairman of the citizens' republican reform association of this city in reply to one asking him to give his opinion of the movement which has for its object the overthrow of bossism. The senator says:

"I do not see how any self-respecting republican can differ with you in your effort to secure to the republican voters of Hamilton county the free and unimpeded selection of candidates for office without the intervention of a boss, or the corrupt use of money to purchase the nominations.

"These methods were strikingly exemplified in the last county convention when a decided majority of a delegation of ten representatives and three senators were nominated for the Ohio legislature, pledged before hand to vote for the person to be designated by the boss when the time came for the election of the senator of the United States.

"His decision was carefully withheld until the election was over and was then announced. In this way the vote for United States senator of the most populous city and county in Ohio was during the canvass held, as I believe, for sale, not by the persons nominated as senators and representatives, who are highly reputable citizens, but by a corrupt organization which was able to control the nominations and practically to exercise the power to vote for United States senator intrusted to its nominees.

"Surely such a condition of public affairs in Hamilton county not only justifies but makes imperative that the republicans of the county should promptly and fearlessly correct these practices.

"It does not diminish their responsibility that similar methods are adopted by the democratic party. Since I have been in public life I have not sought to influence nominations and conventions, and do not wish by this letter to do so, except to join in your appeal to the electors of Hamilton county to assert their right to make nominations and hold conventions—a right too sacred to be delegated to any one—and especially to one who would sell nominations to elective offices, and make the innumerable offices, employments, contracts and labor of a great city, and all the public improvements, contribute to a great corruption fund, which, used by a single manager, or, as is apt to be the case, by two managers, one of each party, tends to destroy the power of the people, to promote extravagance, to increase taxes, and finally to produce riots and violence.

"Whenever such methods appear in municipal governments, it is the duty of good citizens, without respect to party, to depose the boss and enthrone the people.

"Very respectfully yours,
"JOHN SHERMAN."

Cocoas MADE BY THE DUTCH PROCESS

are "Treated with Carbonate of Soda, Magnesia, Potash or Bicarbonate of Soda."

To partially supply the loss of natural flavor and color caused by this treatment, fragrant gums and dyes are used.

Dr. Sidney Ringer, Professor of Medicine at University College, London, and Physician to the College Hospital, perhaps the greatest English authority on the action of drugs, states in his "Handbook of Therapeutics" that "the sustained administration of alkalies and their carbonates renders the blood, it is said, poorer in solids and in red corpuscles, and impairs the nutrition of the body." Of ammonia, carbonate of ammonia, and spirits of ammonia, he says: "These preparations have many properties in common with the alkaline, potash, and soda group. They possess a strong alkaline reaction, are freely soluble in water, have a high diffusion-power, and dissolve the animal textures. . . . If administered too long, they excite catarrh of the stomach and intestines."

For more than 100 Years the house of Walter Baker & Co. have made their Cocoa Preparations ABSOLUTELY PURE, using NO Patent Process, Alkalies or Dyes.

A decision will be handed down before Judge Ricks starts south.

Henry Miller, of Buffalo, grand prelate of the Brotherhood of Electric Wage Workers, will be in Toledo Sunday next, and will address the members of the brotherhood in this city at Mulcahey's hall, at 2 p. m. WANT IT REMOVED.

Southeast Toledo Citizens Object to the Old Pennsylvania Engine House.

Southeast Toledo people are complaining of the old engine house of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and are about to petition the council to have it removed. REV. LAFAYETTE VANCLEVE.

A Prominent Ohio Mason Passes Away.

This morning Leander Burdick received a telegram announcing the death of Rev. Lafayette Vancleve, of Milford, O., a prominent Mason, well known to Toledoans. He was grand chaplain of the grand lodge, F. and A. M., and grand chapter R. A. M., of Ohio; grand prelate of the grand commandery Knights Templar of Ohio, and president of the Masonic Veteran association of Ohio. The funeral will take place Sunday. A number of Toledo Masons will attend.

WESTMINSTER'S ANNIVERSARY.

The Sunday School Will Celebrate To-Morrow Night.

The anniversary of the Sabbath school of the Westminster church will be celebrated at the church to-morrow evening. The event will be conducted on a different plan than on other occasions of the kind. In the past it has been the custom to repair to the main audience room after supper where a program of entertaining features was rendered. The celebration to-morrow evening will be on the plan of a banquet. An elaborate spread will be laid and suitable toasts and speeches made. It will be an enjoyable affair.

NOT QUITE READY

For the Transfer of the Cutlery Factory to Auburndale.

The Bee last evening made mention of the prospective new location for the Chapin Cutlery company, which, it appears, was a little premature. It is true that plans have been prepared and the change discussed, but nothing definite has yet been agreed upon, though the removal is regarded as almost certain, since Glassboro streets and other facilities are not such as are needed for the running of a first-class establishment.

"EILEEN OGEE"

To Be Presented at the Immaculate Conception Parish.

For some time the Immaculate Conception Dramatic club has been rehearsing Edmund Falconer's grand Irish drama, "Eileen Ogee," and it will be presented at Eversman's hall on the evening of March 16 and 17. This club has done good work in the past, and the play to be given next week will undoubtedly be placed before the public with the benefit of the experience gained. The proceeds of the entertainment, as has been the case with all other efforts lately, go to assist in the erection of the new church building, hence a liberal patronage is anticipated.

DR. L. P. TAYLOR

Laid to Rest This Afternoon—Buried Under Masonic Auspices.

The funeral of the late Dr. L. P. Taylor occurred this afternoon from the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Byron F. Ritchie on Vermont avenue. The services were conducted under the auspices of Toledo lodge, F. & A. M., of which he was an honored and respected member.

The deceased has been a resident of Lucas county for years, and fairly earned the title of pioneer. Thus one by one the men who largely aided in starting the Future Great on its busy career are passing away, leaving their high character behind for others to emulate.

HORSE AND A MORTGAGE

Land a Man Behind the Bars for Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

Frank L. Knight, a Toledo carpenter, living at 1326 Hicks street, was brought back from Detroit by Detective John Manley last evening, on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. On the 28th of December Knight sold a horse to the Toledo Laundry company, and at the time claimed that the animal belonged to him and was free from all encumbrances. Later, however, it was discovered that the horse had been mortgaged and the man holding the mortgage replevined the animal. Knight left the city, but is now behind the bars, as previously stated. In police court this morning he pleaded not guilty and the case was set for trial on March 10th.

PECULIAR SUIT

Entered Against the Consolidated Street Car Company.

In common pleas court to-day Katharine Wegner sued the Consolidated Street Railway company to recover $15,000 damages for personal injury. The plaintiff alleges that on August 26, 1891, she was a passenger on one of the defendant's cars, and that the driver so operated the car as to throw her down in the car. She states that she was in delicate health at the time and as a result premature childbirth was caused, and that she has been in bad health ever since.

Otto Wegner, the plaintiff's husband, also entered suit to recover $5,000 for the expense and loss of money alleged to have been incurred by the accident.

PROGRAM FOR THIS EVENING

At the Meeting of the Catholic Literary Club.

This evening a regular meeting of the Catholic Literary club will be held at Friendship hall. An interesting musical and literary program will be carried out. There will be vocal selections by Miss Obermiller and J. B. Po[illegible]n. J. P. Bartelle will read a paper on "Circumstances and Incidents," and Miss Marie Petit will read a paper on "Books and Reading." Mr. T. J. McDonnell will read a speech delivered before the Baltimore Catholic club by the vice rector of that city in reference to Catholic organizations. A profitable time may be expected.

BAD SIDEWALKS

Cost the City Considerable in the Matter of Damages.

The council committee on judiciary held its regular meeting last evening and made an effort to stand off some of the claims brought against the city for damages and abatement of assessments.

The committee offered to settle the claim of Charles S. Vidhart for $250, but the plaintiff's attorneys refused to settle for less than $500. This was a claim for $1,000 damages for personal injuries sustained from a fall on a defective sidewalk at Air Line Junction last November. When the committee could not effect a settlement they rejected the claim.

The claim of Mrs. Phoebe Muller for $5,000 damages for injuries sustained by a fall on a defective sidewalk was again before the committee, and the solicitor was directed to settle for $653.

J. D. Reid was allowed $15 damages for injuries caused his horse by a fall on a defective crossing on Canton avenue.

John Marrauth made a claim for $1,000 damages for a fell on Ottawa street. The case was laid over until the next meeting.

A number of claims for abatement of assessments were also acted upon.

JUDGE STRONG

Has a Few Kind Words Spoken for Him by a Toledoan.

"In the last issue of the Kenton Republican," said Frank Rickenbaugh to a Bee to-day, "it is stated that Judge L. M. Strong, of that place, is willing to have the mantle of a republican nomination for congress fall upon him. The proposed new district in which Hardin county will probably be placed will be strongly republican. There no doubt will be plenty of good men ready to take that nomination, but Judge Strong is just the kind of a man I like to see go to congress. When I was yet living in Tiffin he was on the common pleas bench in that district by appointment from Gov. Foster. He was a splendid judge.

"If congress were made up with that kind of men entirely the country would be fortunate indeed. He was reared on a farm near Tiffin, and after serving all through the war, where through merit alone he won the rank of colonel, he became one of the first lawyers in Kenton. While he is a republican he is not a partisan, and the farmers are particularly his friend, as he owns hundreds of acres of the rich farm lands adjoining Kenton, and two full terms he served them in the Ohio state senate. At this time farmers should have representation in national councils, and I hope Judge Strong will be the representative in his district, for he would be a good one."

THE BOARD OF HEALTH,

The Physicians, Druggists, Trained Nurses and Invalids of Toledo

Are hereby respectfully invited and earnestly requested to call at parlor B, Burnett house, Toledo, from 9 to 11 a. m. Friday and Saturday, March 4 and 5, to inspect, test and investigate the "Process of Administering Aeriform Fluids," by machinery (discovered, invented and patented by me, J. C. Kennedy, M. D.) This "process" and machinery has been and is now in constant use: In Detroit since June, 1887; Grand Rapids since September, 1889; Chicago since June, 1890, and in Champaign, Fowler, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Hillsdale, Adrian, Jackson and Lansing from one to ten months. Over 100,000 persons have been treated by it, and at the present time from 2,000 to 4,000 men, women and children are being treated daily by this process and machinery in the above named cities. Thousands have been benefited and cured by it after every other means had failed. But no one was ever hurt or injured by it in any manner or to any degree, to the best of my knowledge and belief. The treatment is an exhilarating luxury and is absolutely safe. No matter what the age or physical condition of the patient may be, nor does it matter whether it be administered by a physician or a non-professional. The "Process" and machinery is now in use in over 200 private homes and is used as a household remedy by old and young indiscriminately, for colds, pains and as a pleasant invigorator generally, as well as by those who are confined to their rooms or beds by consumption, heart disease, asthma, paralysis, rheumatism, etc. I have practiced medicine in Ohio for over fifteen years; two years in Toledo—1872-'73. I am a graduate of the regular school, but have attended full courses of lectures in homeopathic and eclectic medical colleges, and am familiar with the literature of all schools of medicine and with the properties and affect of the medicinal and remedial agent used by educated physicians generally. Therefore, I invite physicians of all schools to call and investigate the chemical, mechanical and theoraputic properties, possibilities and capabilities of impacted air when administered by this new "Process." It must in the very nature of things engage the attention of all scientific physicians sooner or later, because it embodies the discovery of a new but scientific principle in theorapeutics, and one that does not conflict with any other method or system of treatment. Therefore, all intelligent, fair-minded and honest persons are earnestly requested to call; there is nothing for such persons to fear. Truth is mighty and it will prevail, and none but the vicious, the dishonest and the prejudiced fear the truth as it may be revealed by an honest and fair investigation. There is no secrecy about this "Process" and machinery or the ingredients used. All will be open to a full test and investigation from 9 to 11 a. m. on Friday and Saturday, March 4 and 5 (for investigators only). But invalids are invited to call in the afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock at parlor B, Burnett house. Please bear in mind that I am not now interested in any medical office or practice, but devote all my time to the manufacture an introduction of my Patent Process and machinery, office factory and sale room at Mr. Robert Owens', 226 Washington street, Chicago, Ill.

Also, please take notice that I never was in the city of Corunna; never kept hotel anywhere, and have not been in Grand Rapids since January, 1891. I sold the office and apparatus in that city to a doctor and a druggist in November, 1890. I had over two hundred patients under treatment during September and October in Grand Rapids and left because I sold out, but my Patent Process and machinery is now in use in that city and has been constantly since September, 1889.

SIGHT SUDDENLY RESTORED.

Millersburg, O., March 3.—Adam Feigert, an aged man of Weinsburg, has had a very welcome experience. He has been totally blind for eleven years, and all this time in a helpless condition. By some freak of nature the sight of one eye suddenly returned, and on doing so the first words he spoke were: "Mother, how old you look."

There was general rejoicing in the family over the happy event, and a number of his grandchildren were sent for that he had never seen before.

THE SLEEPY OLD TOWN

St. Louis—A Good Place to Get Away From.

Hustling Chicago in Comparison—The Vast Army of the Unemployed—The Isabellas in Council.

Special Correspondence of the Bee.

Chicago, March 2.—St. Louis is one of the most desirable cities in the world—to get away from. The man or corporation owning the bridge over the city has a bonanza. Anybody will pay a quarter to get out of dirty, smoky, dead-and-alive St. Louis. The only thing that appears to flourish in the city is vice, and that hides behind the veil. No city of the union I have yet visited, but this one, fails to have some line of demarcation between its resident, business and respectable quarters and its disreputable places. In St. Louis you will find a dry goods emporium and a fashionable millinery establishment, and between them a block which has saloon, gambling house, and "rooms to rent to transients," for its three-storied uses. This on a leading business street, and characterizing all streets and avenues, except those in the outlying suburbs, where the finest residences are.

There are no signs of vigorous and present growth anywhere about the city, and in some sections there is manifest decay. For instance, one can take the cable cars and ride to North St. Louis through miles along which no building has been erected in twenty years. Old-fashioned two-story buildings stand all along the line, run down as to paint, and as to business fallen into innocuous desuetude. There is even, on the right and left near the center of the city, the slave markets of ante-bellum days. They have not been torn down, or remodeled. The great, grim gates still padlock a space within which the "likely boy" and "healthy wench" once stood under the hammer. Both markets are now used as mule yards, but from the outside they look, except for having faded a little, just as they did more than thirty years ago.

There is none of the hurry and bustle of '92 anywhere in the city. Even the cable cars, which seem to bring business everywhere else to steam pressure, go slowly. Merchants and clerks will sell you something if you make very manifest your desire to buy; your host at the inn is ever so courteous, but not a bit anxious to hurry to serve you, or to see that his subordinates do. The only bit of business enterprise I saw in a week's stay there was a man standing on a street corner in the early morning, calling out (like a hot muffin vender) weekly subscriptions to the Post-Dispatch. You paid your 15 cents on the spot, and got a receipt for a week's suscription right then and there. This struck me as a new deal in the newspaper subscription business, and a funny way to extend circulation.

St. Louis is, as Chicago asserts, a sleepy town, and that it should ever have seriously thought of taking the world's fair within its gates seems absurd. This is the city for the fair, and, fortunately for the credit of the country, this is the city chosen. Chicago will take care of the world's fair, and do it in great shape. What has been done up to the present time I will tell you later. Just now the city has another problem, not unconnected with the fair, and that is: how to feed its out-of-work population. With true civic pride, which the press and people of Chicago never lack, as little is being said as possible of the want and distress here, but it is appalling. Not less than one hundred thousand people are actually on the verge of starvation. As this includes men, women and children, it is thought if work can be found for thirty thousand, there will be sufficient relief furnished. Quite an agitation to this effect is in progress.

The city is dirty to the verge of pestilence. One is positively held fast in the mud on frequented crossings, and the black, oozy slime overlies everything in every direction. With the oncoming of spring there must be a cleaning up, or much sickness. It is suggested that the city put its spring cleaning immediately into the hands of those unemployed thousands. This would be done at once, were it not that the city has no money to pay for the work. Somehow a city government never does have money for such legitimate work as this. It is possible the emergency here will be met by the issuance of interest bearing scrip to be bought by tax paying citizens, and that the money thus raised will be put to this use.

I said the question of the unemployed was not unrelated to the fair. This because so many of the unemployed elsewhere have been lured hither in the vain hope that workmen are in demand. From skilled architects to ditch-diggers they have come, all to meet with the one condition, an overplus of labor for every sort of work. Chicago has more men than work. It is a thousand pities this is not understood and believed the world over, for workmen are coming here from every quarter of Europe, as well as from our own cities and country. It is believed that the accursed emigration companies which batten on the last dollars thus filched from ignorant emigrants are largely responsible for this. Their posters are over all inland sections of Europe telling that men are needed here.

A great mass meeting was held here Saturday evening, to enter the first formal protest against closing the world's fair on Sunday. It was under the auspices of the Secular union, but those taking part in the protest were largely representatives of labor organizations. I was talking to-day with George Schilling and "Tommy" Morgan, representatives of labor organizations, and all are firmly of opinion that the pressure of popular opinion is on their side, and that the world's fair commissioners will not close the fair grounds on Sunday. They, perhaps, underestimate the pressure of the other side, for the Sabbatarians are very aggressive, and the petitions for Sunday closing they have sent in would fill one good-sized pavilion at the fair grounds.

A bombshell for the Isabella association is the decision of the building committee of the world's fair that the Isabella pavilion and statue cannot be given room in the grounds. The directors of the association were not informed of the decision except through the press. I interviewed Dr. France J. Dickinson, secretary of the association, and Mrs. Corinne S. Brown, one of the directors, this morning. "We feel as though we had been slapped in the face," said Mrs. Brown. Dr. Dickinson said: "The end is not yet. We have been treated very hardly and with gross discourtesy. The building committee says 'all club houses are to be excluded from the grounds.' But ours is not a club house, it is an international memorial to the woman who made the discoveries of Columbus possible. This is what we would explain if the committee would listen to us. They promised to hear us. They gave us their word not to decide until we had laid our palans and wishes before them, and now this is what they have done."

What the Isabella association will do remains to be seen. A meeting of the directors will be held as soon as they can get together in the city, not later than a week from to-day. They will at least renew their demand.

WESTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY.

It Has Received a Gift of $50,000 for Its Women's College.

Cleveland, March 3.—Western Reserve university has received $50,000 from John W. Woods, of this city, for its women's college. The gift is a memorial to his wife, but is free from all conditions.

This sum makes $225,000 which the university and college have received in the past year of President Charles F. Inwing's services. The trustees at their annual meeting yesterday called to be dean of its new law school Eugene Wambough, now professor of Iowa State university. Prof. Wambough is one of the best teachers of law in the whole country.

It was also voted to establish a school of dentistry, and Dr. Butler, one of the most prominent dentists of this city, was elected dean. The university includes Adelbert college for men and five other departments. The commencement of the medical college was held last evening and degrees were given to 34 graduates. Dr. Wayland Hoyt, of Minneapolis, delivered the address.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat market opens 3 pence higher and improving; corn firmer. Liverpool wheat firm and one penny up; corn shade higher.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 528,468 bu., compared with 240,960 bu. on the same day last year.

Retrospective.

It is interesting at times to compare present wheat prices and prospects with the anticipations so unanimously current in August last. And herein is a lesson to the wise men who have been leading the opinion of congressmen in opposition to trading in wheat for future delivery. These men assume that this trading for future delivery depresses the price. They don't know any better, but we do. In August the most extravagant statements of foreign crop losses were made. These reports were very alarming, and everybody—natural short sellers and all—rushed into market as buyers of wheat. The price here was carried up to $1 07 1-2 for No. 2 wheat. But the advance checked business. The receipts of winter wheat in July and August at Toledo, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago were 36,000,000 bu, besides the enormous movement to the seaboard from interior points. Buyers hesitated. The sober second examination of the foreign situation began to be less alarming, prices receded. Very soon the great movement from the northwest began, and its volume, for a while, checked foreign buying. From August 1 to February 1 the importing markets were supplied with all they wanted, and 27,000,000 bu more than wanted. The world's crop was by no means so deficient as expected. Perhaps Russia really had but little wheat to spare. It has been a slow process to move its surplus from one section to where the famine existed. Before the exportation of wheat was interdicted Russian dealers hurried large quantities to England, France and Germany and 35,000,000 bu were thus pushed on to the markets. The shipments from India were more than double the previous year. These were the reasons why wheat did not realize the expectations of our farmers, and the early buyers of farmers' surplus made large losses.

What is the outlook now? On both coasts we have about 64,000,000 bu of wheat in store, besides flour. If we reduce this quantity to 20,000,000 bu by July 1, and that would be a light supply, our visible should decrease at the rate of about 2,500,000 bu for seventeen and one-half weeks. We shall have to hump ourselves to do that.

The receipts of wheat to-day about correspond with yesterday. They aggregate 280,000 bus. more than same date last year.

The export clearances yesterday were light all around. At four Atlantic points the movement of wheat was 123,376 bu. and flour to an aggregate of 400,000 bu. Corn, 240,890 bu Oats, 51,608 bu.

English markets as reported herein opened firm and higher for wheat and corn.

The Markets To-day.

There is a little muttering of discontent by the farmers concerning the wheat crop outlook, but it is no greater than usual at this time in other years. Until the frost leaves and growing weather comes nothing can be determined about it. The winter of our discontent will soon be past. The summer draweth nigh.

The stock of winter wheat is decreasing and when France begins again to buy—and she must—No. 2 red winter will be wanted.

The wheat markets have worked as mysteriously as usual to-day. On stronger cables prices advanced but the offerings were too large and prices broke off again and closed 1-2 to 3-4 below yesterday.

Corn has ruled steady most of the day, but made a weak closing, perhaps in sympathy with wheat.

All the foreign markets close firm and higher.

In New York March wheat closed 3-4 and May 1-2 lower. March corn 1-4 and May 1-8 lower. May oats unchanged.

In Chicago March wheat closed 1-4 and May 5-8 lower. March corn steady, May 1-8 lower. May oats 1-8 lower.

In Toledo business has been fairly active to-day. Wheat started off at about yesterday's closing prices, and made a small advance, but became weak and closed 1-2c lower, without any better reason than a predominence of selling. On the call May sold at 97. After the call May sold at 96 7-8 to 97 1-4 and closed at 96 1-2. July sold at 91 3-4 to 92 1-4 and closed at 91 1-2 steady; August sold at 90 1-2 to 94 and closed at 90 1-4.

Cash wheat was in a little better request. No. 2 sold at 96 1-4@95 1-2c, a loss of 1-2c. No. 3 soft at 94c.

Corn—No. 2 about 41 1-2c; No. 3 at 40c; No. 4 at 39c.

Rye—No. 2 at 87 1-2c; No. 3 at 84 1-2c.

Clover seed was firm and made a slight advance on March delivery. Prime for cash at $6 25@6 30; March at $6 25@6 27 1-2 and $6 30; April, $6 10; No. 2 at $6 00@6 10.

Markets by Telegraph.

London, March 3.—1 p. m.—Wheat cargoes off coast at opening, turn dearer; maize nothing offering. Wheat and maize cargoes on passage and for shipment, improving. No. 1 California wheat just shipped or promptly to be shipped, 500 lbs, California terms, 40s 6d; No. 1 California wheat nearly due, 500 lbs, California terms, 40s.

Liverpool, March 3.—1 p. m.—Wheat market firm, demand poor, holders offer sparingly. American mixed corn firm, demand fair, 4s 7 1-2d. No. 2 spring wheat (U. S. seaboard inspection), 8s@8s 1 1-2d. No. 2 red winter wheat (New York standard), 8s@8s 2d. No. 1 California wheat, 8s 1 1-2d@8s 2 1-2d. Wheat off coast demand poor; corn fair.

New York, March 3.—Money easy at 1 1-2@2 per cent. Exchange steady; posted rates 4 86 1-2@4 88; actual rates, 4 85@4 85 1-2 for 60 days and 4 87@4 87 1-4 for demand.

Governments steady; currency 6s, 109 bid; 4s, coupons, 117 bid; extended 2s, registered, 100 bid.

New York & New England was the feature of the market this morning. The transactions in it aggregated 71,000 shares in the first few minutes. The dealings were attended w itchebaide rsesilPs.fn were attended with considerable excitement.

The first prices were generally slightly higher, but New England was very strong and advanced from 56 to 59 in a few minutes. Its strength did not last long, however, and its price declined as rapidly as it had advanced. It fell to 54 before the downward movement could be checked, and later rallied to 55. Lake Shore advanced 1 5-8; Northwest 1 1-8, and New York Central 1 per cent. The best prices were generally touched just before 11 o'clock. In the hour to noon the fluctuations in most cases were insignificant. Sugar was weak and fell from 87 1-2 to 86 1-4. BREACH OF PROMISE.

Toledo Parties Interested in a Noted Case

To Be Tried Before Judge Doyle—List of Those Who Are Connected With the Matter.

A notable breach of promise case in high life will come up for trial Friday, March 11, before Judge J. H. Doyle. The plaintiff in this interesting issue is Miss Geo. W. Stevens, a gushing young damsel, while the defendant is J. Wm. Wilson, Esq., a well-known young gentleman of this city. This case is to be tried at Y. M. C. A. hall, and people do say that the whole thing has been hashed up for the occasion, and that really Mr. Wilson never said anything to Miss Stevens that would lead her to believe he had any intentions whatever, other than asking her to have a cigar.

However, Frank W. Rickenbaugh and J. R. Calder will try to make out a case against the defendant, while J. S. Martin and J. R. Calder will tearfully explain on the numerous wrongs done their client. Bailiff Geo. Bell Orwig and Court Stenographer James T. Close will be in it. Two important witnesses will be Geo. Padgett and Walter Nichols.

The following jury has been empanneled especially for the occasion: Chas. France, Walden Laskey, D. O. Douglass, Walter Hoskin, Frank Crissey, Frank Hruska, Sam Heller, R. Norton, Geo. Ransom, Joe Fisk, Otto Thomas and G. R. Norris.

This trial will be worth witnessing.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE AT SALEM.

Salem, O., March 3.—A middle-aged stranger arrived in this city and registered at the hotel as A. G. Nehring, Canton, O.

During the night he took a dose of morphine with suicidal intent. This did not have the desired effect, so he commenced on his throat with a razor.

When the room was opened he was found bleeding with two terrible gashes that will probably result fatally.

The Bee

The democratic situation is growing decidedly Boiesterous.

Little Greece is in fashion with a cabinet crisis all her own.

Toledoans will know more about pumping gas when Mr. Murphy reports the situation in Pittsburg.

If good delegates are not selected this spring and a good ticket not nominated, it will be the fault of the democrats. The primary system is in the interest of first class nominations.

The Australian colony of Queensland settles the vexed question in short order: it prohibits immigration in toto until it can sort out and see what it has already on hand.

There is a mighty big job in the Cincinnati water works bill which has just passed the house. Perhaps, because the job is big is the reason the jobbers passed the measure.

If the gas trustees think their work is endorsed by the people they should insist upon Col. Parsons standing as a candidate for re-election. That would test the question once and for all.

"Hill's enumerators" are rather overdoing the job. One of them was fined $5 yesterday for kissing the lady of the farm house, after she had promptly answered his questions.

The results of the early city and town elections in New York state Tuesday show the disastrous effect of the democratic quarrels. "The Western man" looms up bigger than ever.

Those brutal Spaniards who enjoy bull fights; when will they become civilized and refined like we 'uns, and learn to revel in the sight of men pummeling one another to black and blue flesh and blood jelly?

It is said some members of the railroad committees in the legislature are much disappointed because the companies do not oppose the jobbing bills that have been introduced. Shrewd turn the railroads have taken.

The appointment of Dr. Campbell, of Fulton county, to again be a trustee of the Toledo asylum is very gratifying to the friends of the institution who know how well he performed the duties of the office when formerly a member of the board.

Secretary Foster has arrived in London, and been interviewed: "What is the democratic situation?" answer, "Deplorable." Right you are, Mr. Secretary. The factional disturbances in the party are greatly to be deplored, for on its success depends the perpetuity of the people's republic.

The demand for over two millions dollars indemnity from Chile, by the thirty-four sailors of the Baltimore, is in keeping with the magnitude of President Harrison's spread-eagleism. If such claims are countenanced by this government it will look like the determination of a bully to pick a fuss.

The price of wool has gone down; the prices of woolen goods have increased. Carpet dealers are receiving circulars saying, certain grades, (named) have advanced in price two and a half cents a yard (on tapestry brussels) after this date. How do sheep growers and woolen goods consumers like this McKinley tax law anyhow?

Ah, there! the London Post says, "American lawyers are more skilled in international law than those of any other country," and, that the recent decision in the Sayward case rests upon technical grounds only, and that Mr. Blaine relied upon these shows the weakness of his case on its merits.

Secretary Foster escapes this beautiful Ohio weather by going abroad. London is smothered in fog and wet snow and the channel gales sweep over the island. And this is the kind of change some men make to recover from the grip. The supposition is he wanted to get as far as he could from that empty and echoing treasury.

The Socialists of Berlin met and expressed regret at the recent disturbances; while adhering firmly to their principles and demands they deprecate the exhibition of impatience and lawlessness. Emperor William bowed and said "thank you, gentlemen, don't let it happen again; remember I am He," or words to that effect.

In the light of the record of he past twenty-five years of Indian-agent robberies and government cheating of the red man, it illy becomes the hypocritical organs whose party emptied the United States treasury to sniffle about the treatment the poor Indian is getting from a democratic congress. The lamb's skin is not large enough to cover the hoofs and horns.

John Sherman has written a remarkable letter to Cincinnati republicans, protesting against the Cox-Foraker bossism. Mr. Sherman's denunciation is vigorous and timely, but as he is the biggest political boss Ohio has ever known, his utterances are very pharasaical. The boss arraigning bossism at the bar of public opinion is something new in our highly mixed politics.

Strange feature of American politics: Grover Cleveland is, without doubt, the most popular democrat in the whole country to-day, and for good cause, but he may not get the nomination for the presidency, because the combination is against him. Harrison is, perhaps, the least popular candidate in his party, but he has his hand on the lever of the machine and his chances for nomination are good. And yet "the people" rule.

The Lumbermen's Association protests against placing lumber on the free list.

Certainly; so does every favored business protest against the discontinuance of governmental aid. They are afraid the forests of Canada and British Columbia may be chopped down and get ahead of our own in the world's market. To remove an unjust tax from every wooden dwelling that is built; and to save our own forests from wholesale slaughter, if indeed it will do this, remove the tax, say those who help pay it and get no return benefit. The lumber barons can live on the interest of their money for a while and let the burden bearers take a bit of rest.

The report is that 300,000 Germans in the Volga provinces of Russia are making preparation to come to the United States. The Czar is expelling foreigners, and this people being of German extraction fall under the ban. Has the United States anything to say about their reception? The New York Mail and Express, always prompt to speak for the whole world or any portion of it, says, "the Germans usually swell the republican party when they become citizens; let them come and be welcome." No matter about the vast army of unemployed and poverty-stricken we have already with us; if a fresh horde will hustle to vote the republican ticket, let them in. Most noble patriotism.

OUT ON A STRIKE.

Chicago Shoe Workers Take a Little Vacation.

Chicago, March 3.—At 9 o'clock to-day 600 men and boys and 25 women walked out in a body from one of the largest shoe factories in Chicago, owned by Selz, Schwab & Co., at Superior and Kingsbury streets.

A number of the employes struck some time ago, but their difficulties were adjusted and they returned to work. On their return they found that seven additional men had been employed.

They asked the firm to discharge these seven men and the firm refused, saying the extra men were needed. So the strikers went out again. Yesterday afternoon 300 employes who sympathize with the strikers held a meeting and finally decided to go out to-day. They assert that the whole force of employes will join them.

WHERE DOES OHIO COME IN?

Pennsylvania to Make a Show of Her Oil Derricks.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—At the meeting of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania world's fair commission to-day a resolution was adopted requesting the national commission from this state to insist on a proper consideration by the national management of the Chicago exposition of the great natural interest of Pennsylvania, the fair authorities having refused to permit an exhibit of machinery appliances, etc., in connection with the production of petroleum, coal and other ores and natural gas.

The reports of the various sub-committees as to the progress of their work to insure a creditable exhibit from this state were very encouraging.

MORE READING DEALS.

The Product of the Pardee Mines to be Gathered In.

Philadelphia, March 3.—It is stated that Coxe Bros., the largest coal operators in Pennsylvania, have made a deal with the firms of Pardee Bros. & Co., Pardee Sons & Co., and C. Pardee & Co. for the control of the mines operated by them at Latimer, Mt. Pleasant and Hollywood.

This deal, it is said, will divert the carrying of the product of these mines to the Reading system from Bethlehem to Philadelphia, instead of shipping it by way of Phillipsburg, N. J., over the Belvidere division of the Pennsylvania railroad.

TO GO INTO THE SLUMS.

Congress to Take Another Junket to the Large Cities.

Washington, March 3.—The committee on education and labor has reported favorably to the senate a joint resolution directing the commissioner of labor to investigate the slums of cities of 200,000 inhabitants and over.

The inquiry is to relate to the occupations, earnings, sanitary surroundings and other essential facts necessary to show the condition of residents of such localities.

MR. ROSS SELECTED

As England's Arbitrator in the Bering Sea Matters.

London, March 3.—It is reported that Mr. Ross, adjuster for the National Marine Insurance company, has been selected as arbitrator for Great Britain in the Bering sea dispute.

BY THE PEOPLE.

New York Moves in the Matter of Electing U. S. Senators.

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—In the assembly the judiciary committee has reported a concurrent resolution calling upon New York's representatives in congress to favor the bill providing for the election of United States senators by the people.

MINNESOTA REPUBLICANS.

St. Paul, Minn., March 3.—The republican state central committee, at its meeting yesterday decided upon May 5 as the date for holding the convention for the election of delegates to the national convention. St. Paul was chosen as the place of meeting in accordance with the new apportionment and the number of delegates will be 549.

AGAINST RECIPROCITY.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, March 3.—The local board of trade has forwarded to Quito an energetic protest against the ratification by the national congress of the proposed reciprocity treaty with the United States, the paper being signed by nine-tenths of the importers and exporters of the republic.

RHODE ISLAND DEMOCRATS.

Providence, R. I., March 3.—W. C. Wardwell was nominated for governor yesterday and Charles F. Gorman for lieutenant governor. For secretary of state, John Hifferman. General treasury, Thomas G. Spencer.

STRUCK GOLD.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 3.—Miners are flocking to the Hamburg district, where it is reported that a big strike of gold has been made. The ore runs, it is said, from $600 to $800 per ton.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

General Solicitor Butterworth, of the world's fair, says he may resign.

The late John B. Gough's books will be sold at auction in Boston on March 22.

Prof. John Fiske declares that there is not a competent scientific man in the world to-day who is not an evolutionist.

Mr. Mahany, the Buffalonian who has accepted the mission to Ecuador, is said to be the youngest diplomatist of his rank in the world.

Rev. J. H. Haines, a Laconia (N. H.) Methodist minister, was convicted of lying about kissing the sisters of his church and expelled from conference.

Queen Victoria's favorite retreat, it is said, is the private garden of Osborne Castle on the Isle of Wight. She is less exposed there to the restraints of high place and the espionage of servants than in other residences.

Dr. Cyrus Teed, the leader of the Koreshans, who calls himself the coming Messiah, has amalgamated with Thomas Lake Harris, Primate of the Brotherhood of New Life, whose headquarters are in Sonoma county, Cal.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts clings to the old-fashioned idea that black is an unlucky color to wear at a wedding. Her favorite wedding-gown is a bright sapphire blue velvet, with a wonderful mixture of feathers and fur as headgear.

The Usual Protection

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

Its Management to be Investigated.

Sightseers and Guests Have Been Robbed and Congress Will Look Into It.

Washington, March 3.—The management of the Yellowstone National park is likely to be investigated by a committee of the house of representatives and the frequent charges that have been made against the hotel and stage coach abuses in this great government reservation will be inquired into in detail and every opportunity given for the substantiation of these serious allegations.

Representative McRae, of Arkansas, has introduced a resolution directing the committee on public lands to investigate and report by bill or otherwise the circumstances under which the leases for hotel and stage coach privileges were awarded in 1889 to the Yellowstone National Park association, but afterwards rescinded and forfeited and then awarded to S. S. Huntley.

The committee is also directed to make full inquiry into the manner of administering the affairs of the park, particularly touching leases and privileges and the management of the park generally by the interior department; and it is authorized to designate a sub-committee and have full power to send for persons and papers.

Mr. McRae asked unanimous consent for the immediate adoption of the resolution, but Mr. Buchanan, of New Jersey, thought that the matter was one which should first be reported to the committee on rules, and on his objection the resolution was referred to that committee.

ANOTHER CUT IN WAGES.

Singer Sewing Machine Employes on the List.

A Sweeping Reduction of From Ten to Twenty Per Cent. Has Been Made.

New York, March 3.—The Sun says that a sweeping reduction in wages paid to piece workers at the Singer Sewing Machine works went into effect yesterday and there is much excitement among the 3,500 employes in consequence. The cut will range from 10 to 20 per cent.

TOLEDO'S GREAT GROWTH.

Thousands of New and Handsome Homes—Fine Streets.

Testimony of a Mansfield Man Who Looked About the Future Great for a Time.

Last evening's Mansfield Herald contains the following observations about Toledo and some of her people, which will be good reading:

A few days ago we happened to be a guest of Mr. J. B. Franz at the popular Hotel Hamilton, Toledo, where all Mansfield people sojourning in that city make their homes.

Mr. Franz at Toledo, as at Mansfield, keeps a handsome team of horses and seizes every opportunity to give his friends a ride over the handsome and thriving city of the Maumee. In short it is to Mr. Franz's courtesy in this particular that many people have seen Toledo, been pleased with the town and impressed with the thought that it has a great future, and therefore invested in real estate, or permanently located there. It has come to be a saying with Toledo people who see the landlord with a friend in his carriage:

Toledo's growth, particularly in her residence part, within the past three years, while many other cities have been at a stand-still, has been wonderful. New and elegant homes have sprung up in every quarter of the town, but this is particularly true of the Seventh and the Third wards, where the evidences of growth are greatest. One is amazed at the value of the improvements. There are hundreds of new homes that have cost upwards of $10,000, and on every hand and direction are looming up the frame work of others. The streets are models of good work, asphalt being the prevailing roadway in the newer quarters, although Toledo can boast of granite blocks, brick roadways and the wood pavement.

Toledo's claims have ever been away up in G, but the evidence before one's eyes must convince us that these claims have really not been based on other than first-rate foundation. She certainly has 100,000 population at the present time.

Toledo claims to receive and dispatch 140 railway trains daily and to be the third largest railway center on earth. She has had plenty of natural gas, and from the report of the investigating committee, recently on a tour of inspection in Wood and Hancock counties, she has it yet and is likely to have it for some years to come. However, coal is cheaper at Toledo than at Mansfield. And she borders the Maumee where the lake receives its waters, and has at least 24 miles of available dockage.

Toledo certainly is destined to be a great city. Many old Mansfield and Wooster people seem to think so, too, since David Robison, jr., and his two energetic sons, of Wooster, own near 30 miles of electric street railway there, and such well-known gentlemen from Mansfield as John Hahn, General Superintendent J. S. Morris, and perhaps a dozen more own property and live there, while Jacob Hade has become an old valued citizen, as has also Freight Agent Frank Janes, and a host of others. In short, one cannot walk the length of four blocks on Summit, or any of the leading streets, any day, without being hailed by an old Richlander.

IRON AND STEEL MEN.

A New Organization Has Been Formed.

The Amalgamated Will Have Greater Opposition to Contend With Than Ever.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 3.—The skelp iron and steel manufacturers of this district have formed an association and when the time comes to arrange a new scale of wages the Amalgamated association will have two associations of manufacturers to deal with instead of one as heretofore.

Ever since the formation of the Amalgamated association it has been the custom to arrange the scale on the basis of bar iron.

The skelp and steel men have always claimed that this was unfair to them and they have at last decided to insist upon a scale to be based upon their own product.

They will also insist upon three turns a day of eight hours each, instead of two turns, as under the old scale, accepted by the Western Iron Manufacturers' association.

It is expected that the demand of the skelp and steel manufacturers will meet with opposition from the Amalgamated association, and a bitter fight may follow.

John Jarrett, at present consul to Birmingham and formerly president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, has been offered the management of the new manufacturers' association, and, it is said, he will accept it.

The new association is entirely independent of the Bar Iron Manufacturers' association and the Tin Plate association, and has been formed for the protection of the iron and steel men in this section.

In it are represented 30 firms in Pittsburg and the Ohio valley, and between 30,000 and 40,000 men are employed by the firms represented. The association is not opposed to any reduction in work, and will endeavor to secure the full output of the mills owned by the members.

No half-way measures are contemplated, but each and all of the demands made will be urged and insisted on. That they will meet with most determined opposition both from the Amalgamated association and the bar iron makers is certain, but the manufacturers have carefully weighed all the questions and are prepared to accept the consequences of the radical demand. It is composed of the wealthiest and strongest firms in the iron and steel business, and that it will maintain its demands there seems to be no question.

This is the most important and radical change yet presented to the Amalgamated association, and, unless complied with, means a most determined fight against that body of workers. It is the beginning of a war to the death between the manufacturers and labor associations if the demands are not granted. It inaugurates the greatest struggle between capital and labor yet had in this vicinity, and will affect the iron and steel industry of the United States.

THE TARIFF ON LUMBER.

Mill Men and Dealers Want It Kept Up.

The Poor Man Who Wants to Buy a House Will Probably Think the Other Way.

Washington, March 3.—At the opening of the session of the lumbermen's convention, a communication was read from the Tonawanda (N. Y.) lumber association, in which they expressed sympathy with the object of the meeting, and not only strongly protest against the passage of the bill recently introduced in the house of representatives by Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, putting lumber on the free list, but ask for the imposition of the duty of $2 per 1,000 feet.

A series of resolutions contending against the passage of the bill were also read from the Tacoma (Wash.) lumber manufacturers' association.

Mr. C. W. Goodyear, of Buffalo, the chairman of the committee on resolutions, read the report of the committee.

It is addressed to the house of representatives, and after showing that the convention represents the interests of the lumber manufacturers and wholesale lumber dealers of the United States, and stating that the convention was called to consider the bill introduced by Mr. Bryan, placing lumber on the free list, the report sets forth the magnitude of the business and protests against the passage of the bill.

MAYOR EMMICK

Being on His Way to Pittsburg, the Police Board

Was Presided Over by Commissioner Kruse—Two Cops on the Carpet for $25—Other Business.

The police commissioners met in regular session last evening.

In the absence of Mayor Emmick, Commissioner Kruse presided.

Health Officer Fisher submitted his report for February. It showed total deaths for the month of 103, of which diphtheria claimed five, scarlet fever two, consumption seven, grip two, pneumonia 17.

The city chemist reported a sample of meat coloring examined which was found to contain poisonous substances, dangerous to health. The report was accompanied by a piece of wool dyed a bright red, by the coloring used as a meat coloring.

The chemist recommended that the use of the coloring be prohibited.

The board was in some doubt as to what course to pursue. Secretary Benney called attention to a resolution adopted some time previously, prohibiting the use of coloring in meats. A resolution was passed specifying sausage in the same resolution.

The chief of police submitted his report for the month of February. It showed arrests in city cases 242, and state cases 67; a grand total of 291.

The regular schedule of monthly bills amounting to $328.15; the pay roll of the police force $5,754.62, sanitary $1,369.91, court $719.14, were reported by the committee and ordered paid.

The committee on station recommended that a sewer be constructed under the patrol barn. A bid was submitted by McLennan & Welch to do the work for $108, which was accepted.

Mr. Waring went down in his pocket and fished out a crumpled bit of paper, from which the clerk read as follow:

To the Honorable Mayor of the City of Toledo, O.:

At the request of numerous citizens of the city of Toledo I hereby most respectfully submit this my formal application to your honorable body for appointment to the position of one of the sanitary police force of the said city whenever a vacancy may occur in said force.

Very respectfully,
S. R. TITUS.

The communication was placed on file.

Mr. Potter, on behalf of citizens living in the vicinity of Utah and Fassett streets, requested that the board recommend a small sewer be constructed from Fassett street to the railroad crossing to drain the surface water from the lots adjoining. A resolution recommending this action on the part of the council was adopted.

William P. Herman was summoned before the board to answer to the charge of neglect of duty, preferred by Sergeant Scott. It was complained that he lounged about McLaren & Sprague's lumber office on St. Clair street instead of attending to his duties. He was fined $25 and called on the carpet and lectured by the chair.

Officer Langel was next called in to answer to the charge of reporting late for roll call on two mornings and with sleeping on his post. He was fined $25 and lectured.

Mr. Kruse wanted a patrol box in front of his house on Broadway, and the board gave it to him.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Much Progress Made by the Committee.

It Will Call for a Fair Appropriation of Money—Southern Men Warmly Favor It.

Washington, March 3.—The river and harbor appropriation bill is beginning to take definite shape, considerable progress having been made by the house committee in its preparation.

The bill has not yet reached the stage at which its aggregate amount can be stated, but its consideration has gone far enough to show that the total of appropriations will be considerably larger than seems to have been anticipated by some persons who looked for a bill appropriating a sum much less than the measure passed by the last congress.

While the members of the majority of the committee are in accord with the general policy of the house of keeping down expenditures, the southern members do not believe that the river and harbor bill should be cut to a very much greater extent than other bills.

The river and harbor bill is more popular in the south than in some other parts of the country, and the southern members feel that as this is one of the few measures in which their section has a considerable share in the appropriations, a bill of sufficient size to continue as expeditiously as practicable the work of the improvement of our navigation should be brought in.

THE TWENTY-THIRD YEAR

Of Toledo's Woman Suffrage Association.

Annual Meeting Yesterday Afternoon—The President's Address—Officers Elected, Etc.

The twenty-third annual meeting and election of officers of the Toledo Woman's Suffrage association was held yesterday afternoon in room 9 Fort Industry block, with Mrs. Rosa L. Segur presiding.

Mrs. Maud E. Dutton gave a report of her visit to the police matron and its results.

Mrs. S. Barker read the constitution of the association and a resume of the past year's work.

Mrs. S. R. L. Williams read a communication from Susan B. Anthony relative to the fund for busts of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lucretia Mott and Susan B. Anthony. Action in the matter was postponed until the next meeting.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. S. H. Morgan, was read and accepted, showing that the receipts of the association during the year were $50.92, and the disbursements $24.50, leaving a balance of $26.42.

The president, Mrs. Segur, read her annual report, which was as follows:

Friends and Co-Workers: The rapid flight of time brings us to-day to the twenty-third annual meeting of this association, organized at Hunker's hall, March, 1869, for the purpose of securing to women the full rights of citizenship. If we can congratulate ourselves upon nothing else, we certainly have demonstrated the cohesive power of Toledo women to work almost a quarter of a century for one object, never swerving from the idea for which we organized ourselves into this organization and never failing to hold our regular meetings.

At the last National Suffrage convention at Washington, instructions to further woman's enfranchisement were organize, educate. This we have done all through the years, and were every community in Ohio organized to-day as well as Toledo, any legislative enactment giving us partial suffrage, which we chose to ask, and which could, would be granted. While great numbers might be an advantage in an organization like this, we have proved that a few earnest workers have accomplished much in educating public opinions among us. How many petitions we have circulated, how often have we asked from municipal and state legislatures measures of justice and political equality for women, how many protests we have made against legislation injurious to women, and how often we have succeeded in preventing bills from becoming laws, when unfavorable legislation against us was pending. The conventions we have held and attended, the letters we have addressed to our governors which have never been answered, the funds we have received and expended to further our cause, the immense correspondence which has been carried on by which so much has been accomplished. Ah! who can number all these? Surely they have done their educational work in enlightening public opinion, which is evident all around as in the greater freedom women are enjoying in choice of occupation, education, associate capacities and in every manner which has made the world a more just and happier abiding place for them.

For over 15 years we were the only Woman Suffrage organization in Ohio. Then the state society was organized and we have worked with it. We have held two great successful state conventions in Toledo. We labored to secure a police matron, and in gaining that official again attested our perseverance in caring for the unfortunate of our sex. Even within the past month how active have been our members. Common council and school board have felt our existence and been led to think that some women are demanding their natural rights in the realms of legislation. That women are citizens where rights cannot with justice be ignored, and if ignored it will be done against their protests.

Congratulations are again in order upon the formation of the Toledo Woman's Political Equality club, a fresh young organization zealous in forwarding the woman's franchise movement and in educating themselves to be ready when their rights are recognized to take possession of them. A woman suffrage journal has been added to the list in Toledo and in the Women's Recorder we have an organ to battle for our rights. Long may it live. While our increase in numbers has not been so rapid, our influence in moulding public opinion in our community and vicinity has been stupendous—acknowledged and felt in all northwestern Ohio. Passing years are leaving their impress upon us. We are not as young as we were 23 years ago, but good mother Nature compensates us by the experience all these passing years have brought us. Only two of our members, Mrs. Harvey Bissell and Mrs. Martha Stebbins have passed on to the Beyond in three years, leaving us the blessed memory of their fidelity to the cause of woman's enfranchisement. Without flattery and some little degree of self-complacency we may congratulate ourselves that our minds retain the zeal of youth and even its fresh spirit with the experience of age, and we begin another year undaunted by defeat, full of hope, courage and persevering effort ready to do and work faithfully, hopefully and await the time when the seed we have sown and carefully fostered will bear its fruit, meanwhile paving the way for our daughters whose inheritance we are making more glorious and more free. We end the work of this year by acknowledging our obligation to Miss Mott for room, and thanks to the press for fair reports. The work of the year is now ended and the presidential chair declared vacant. Thanking you all for the kindly courtesy extended me as your presiding officer, I now retire. Will some one nominate a president pro tem., that the election of officers for the ensuing year may proceed?

At the conclusion of the report Mrs. Segur left the chair, and Mrs. Fray was chosen temporary president. The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Rosa L. Segur.
Vice president—Mrs. Mary F. Lang.
Corresponding secretary—Mrs. S. S. Bissell.
Recording secretary—Mrs. S. Barker.
Treasurer—Mrs. Matie Eck.

The executive committee will be appointed at the next meeting. The home report was read by Mrs. S. R. L. Williams. Some suffrage literature was distributed among the ladies for study.

Mrs. S. R. L. Williams was appointed a committee to visit the police matron during the month.

The next meeting will be held on the first Wednesday in April.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

"Niobe," the New Comedy, at Wheeler's To-Night.

Three Performances of Paul Kauvar—Elsie Leslie in "Prince and Pauper"—Gus Hill Next Week.

The new comedy success, Niobe, will be presented at Wheeler's this evening by Abbott & Teal's company, and a treat is promised. There has been a good demand for seats and there will be a large audience.

The Cleveland Leader speaks as follows of the performance in that city Monday evening:

A good company of comedians presented Niobe at the Lyceum last evening, and the piece not only kept the interest of the audience strained to an unusual point, but aroused its laughter at the same time. No piece equaling it in these features has been seen here in a long time. Ever since its success has been known and that it was written by Harry and Edward Paulton, the authors of the libretto of Erminie, which is a very free adaptation of the old drama, Robert Macaire, the source of their inspiration has been a matter of some perplexing surmises, but last night's representation set all these doubts to rest. They have made a new version of Pygmalion and Galatea, which yields readily enough to comical treatment. George R. Edeson took the part of Peter Arthur Dunn in a capable manner. Charles Coote was the Cornelius Griffin, and Arthur Falkland the Phineas Innings, and these parts were well played. Isabella Coe did justice to the part of Niobe, a hard role to manage. During the intermission the orchestra played a musical specialty entitled "The Spirit Bells." Two more evening performances and a Wednesday matinee will be given of Niobe.

Paul Kauvar.

Paul Kauvar, Steele Mackaye's spectacular melo-drama, which is so well-known in Toledo as to require no description, will follow Niobe at the Wheeler opera house to-morrow evening. It will be given three times, two nights and a matinee.

The following is from the Cleveland Plain Dealer:

"The scene of the drama is pitched in the midst of that most tremendous panorama of human events—the French revolution—and the action is naturally quick and even boisterous at times. It is a play which awakens, stirs and thrills, for it deals with sentiments that find an echo in every heart. Paul Kauvar was interpreted by Mr. Edward L. Snader, a robust young actor, who sustained his part well. Miss Agnes Roselle Knott, a beautiful woman, with a superb form and lustrous black eyes, was cast as Diane and stood the test in the third act, which is her strongest scene, very well, indeed. Miss Margaret Ivanilli as Nanette was good. Mr. Daniel Kelly as Dodolphe Potin was also good. Mr. Samuel M. Forrest as Gen. Delaroche was forcible and Mr. George Conway as Col. La Hogue, a jolly and lovable old character, was excellent. The other characters were in competent hands, particularly that of Duc de Beaumont, by Mr. Arthur G. Smith. The orchestra brought from Atlantic City was under the direction of Prof. Max Falkenheuer, who was presented with a large bouquet of flowers. Paul Kauvar will run all next week."

Prince and Pauper.

Elsie Leslie, who appears here in The Prince and the Pauper at Wheeler's, March 7 and 8, is looked upon by the outside world as a prodigy, but those associated with her in the company say that it is not precocity but inherent genius. It is stated that her artistic talent crops out on every occasion when she plays a new part, and that she frequently supplements the directions of her stage manager with new and original ideas of her own. Her manager says of her: "She is not precocious, but a born artist and a little girl of the most acute perceptions. She intuitively understands what I am about to tell her before I finish speaking and never have I been obliged to remind her of any instructions already given, which is more than can be said of any other actress in my recollection." Elsie first gave promise of possessing great artistic capabilities when with Joseph Jefferson's company, five years ago. Her clear enunciation and complete appreciation of her part astonished him, and she became a great favorite of his.

"The Divine Sara."

One cause of Mme. Bernhardt's enduring success in this country reflects great credit on her sense. She always does things right and produces two or three new plays every season. This year she has added three plays to her repertoire, which was already stronger and more varied than any other actress could boast of. La Tosca is still the favorite role with her audiences, because it gives a glimpse of the divine Sara in comedy as well as tragedy.

Gus Hill.

Gus Hill's World of Novelties will be the attraction at the People's theater all of next week and a splendid variety performance is promised.

The New York Herald praises them as follows:

"Gus Hill's Vaudeville combination appeared at Tony Pastor's theater last evening and the entertainment, for novelty and refinement, was worthy of the place. Over 3,000 persons hugely enjoyed Hill's choice collection of specialty artists. The champion of the world, Hill, was received with special favor; Fred J. Huber and Kitty Allyne presented some clever originality; Estelle Wellington danced rapturously. Al. Reeves played the banjo cleverly; Marion and Keene did a decidedly neat conversational and singing act; the audience screamed with laughter at Mason and Ralston, known as the "one-and-a-half," the half being especially funny; the acrobatic agility of the Judges was wonderful. Fields and Hanson sustained their well-known reputation. Hill has eclipsed all former efforts in the present organization."

TOLEDO WILL HAVE ONE.

An Establishment for the Cure of the Drink Habit.

Steps Being Taken for the Incorporation of a Company—Looking About for Headquarters.

Toledo has the reputation of never being behind the times. If anything new turns up it is generally the case that the Future Great is found along at the head of the procession, generally next to the band wagon. Just at present the bi-chloride of gold treatment, for those addicted to the drink habit, is attracting much attention throughout the country, in consequence of the remarkable cures that are being effected at the several institutions that were early in the field.

Toledo is to have a gold cure establishment with a well known former Toledoan at the head, in the person of Dr. A. E. Karsner, who for the past three years has been located at St. Joe, Mo. Previous to that time Dr. Karsner was the city agent at Toledo for the Union Central Life Insurance company. He is in the city to-day, and in company with a number of well known gentlemen is formulating plans for incorporating under the laws of Ohio for the purpose of establishing in Toledo an institution of the order above mentioned.

Dr. Karsner, speaking of the project to a Bee, stated that the institution would have commodious headquarters in this city, and that branches would be established in the surrounding towns to which regular visits would be made for the benefit of those patients who would be unable to come to Toledo.

The doctor is enthusiastic on the subject of the gold treatment, and will endeavor to bring the Toledo institution to the front. The project will be pushed rapidly, and inside of two weeks the institute will be in operation. The gentlemen interested will decide on a location to-day or to-morrow.

AN OPEN SECRET.

A Woman's Wisdom and Experience.

"It is no secret at all."

The speaker was a lady noted for the wonderful preservation of her health and beauty. She had been asked in a circle of friends how she maintained her dazzling complexion and good health.

"A perfect complexion and good health in women," she said, "depend upon two things—strong nerves and a good stomach. Most women are excessively nervous, weak and languid, and as a result their complexions are sallow and their faces pinched, drawn and wrinkled. Few women have perfect digestion. Now obviously, if women wish sound health and good complexions they must get their nerves strong and their digestion good. The best thing in the world to do this is Dr. Greene's Nervura, for it is a wonderful strengthener of weak nerves and gives a vigorous appetite and perfect digestion." It is the best Spring Tonic and Invigorator, and everybody needs a Spring medicine. Besides, it is a vegetable remedy, pure and harmless.

"Dr. Greene's Nervura is a wonderful remedy for nervous prostration, and those terrible tired, weak feelings that make life a burden, almost too great to bear. I feel that I cannot say enough in its praise for what it has done for me. It gives one the most restful sleep and in fact does all and more than all it claims to do. I wish every poor, tired woman on the face of the earth could be induced TO TRY IT FOR THREE DAYS; they would then understand its value, and life would not seem so wearisome and undesirable.

ETTA E. HAVEN,
41 Negers St., Webster, Mass."

Dr. Greene, the successful specialist, in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th street, New York, can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write to him about your case or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

REAL ESTATE.

What is Going On Among the Lively Dealers,

Who Regard the Prospects as More Than Bright

For the Coming Season—Transfers for the Week—All Waiting for Steady Weather.

Real estate and water when thoroughly mixed up makes mud and bad business.

This has just been that kind of a week, rain, mud and slop, with an occasional downfall of snow to thicken the mixture.

Dealers staid in their offices, kept their feet dry and curtailed expenses. Inquiry was up to the standing, as prospective buyers could sit around the stoves and talk the matter over. The property was viewed from the plats only, for no real estate dealer would be so foolish as to take a customer to look at property, during such weather as prevailed.

However, several good sales went through during the week, and many more are grinding in the mill.

Building is looking up, and contractors are happy. Architects are busy on a number of big buildings that will be erected during the season.

The usual amount of small property changed hands during the week. Prospects for a most excellent season, were never brighter; and by the time the weather settles business will be booming all along the line.

Spring and Real Estate.

"This is miserable weather for real estate business," remarked Robert P. McCaskey, as he gazed out of his office window at the rain pouring in perfect torrents on the miry, muddy streets. "There is no use trying to sell property this kind of weather, it is simply out of the question. There are several inches of mud on almost every paved street in town, and there is no bottom to the streets that are not paved. It would be folly to take prospective buyers out to look at property a day like this. Ride him over muddy, dirty pavements and then, perhaps, through mud up to the hubs, he would be in a likely frame of mind to look at property, wouldn't he? The buyer would feel so much like talking business, when we arrived at the locality to find the property half under water, or all torn and ragged looking. You have no idea how spring weather musses up property. You have been in dry good stores and seen the stock all piled up here and there, topsy-turvy, everywhere. Well, that is just the appearance property has to a real estate dealer on days of this kind. It is not so bad when the ground is frozen, for then that sticky, mucky appearance is gone, and the property has a substantial appearance. However, this weather will not last long, and when it does clear up, look out for lively times. This is going to be the year of years in real estate. Stick a pin in that."

In the Building Line.

It would seem from the hundreds of houses built last year that there would not be a demand for a house to rent for the next five years to come. Architects, contractors, carpenters, and, in fact, all building tradesmen had all they could do from early spring until winter was well on, and a great many were employed at their trade the whole year round. Houses were erected everywhere in rows and blocks, single and double, and they are all occupied. Still there is a demand for good houses to rent. This looks well for Toledo. One thing it indicates, that the city is growing, and another that the people are not content to live or exist in a hut, but want to live as civilized people should live, in a house up off the ground.

Suburban Property Will Move.

"There is going to be an immense movement of outside property this year," said F. B. Losee to a Bee, "far greater than last year, and there is reason to expect it. Workingmen are beginning to see wisdom of owning their own homes. Toledo extends over a great deal of territory, and there is plenty of vacant property to be had at reasonable figures. Of course it is located at quite a distance from the central portion of the city, but there is where our splendid street car system comes in. I don't believe there is a locality within the city limits that cannot be reached within a very few squares by street car. This then makes it possible for a man to go quite a distance, buy a lot away down, and build him a home on it with some chance of paying for it. Business men are now looking to the suburbs for homes more than ever, and many beautiful residences will be erected in the outskirts this summer. I apprehend that this will be a busy and prosperous summer in all branches of business life."

Prospects Bright.

Mr. A. K. Detwiler, seated cosily in the new office of E. H. Detwiler & Co., on St. Clair street, adjoining the postoffice, cordially greeted a Bee and responded as follows to the inquiry as to the state of real estate affairs:

"Matters are very satisfactory with us indeed. Business is better than it has been at this season of the year for a number of years past. There are a large number of inquiries both from our home people and outsiders, and a peculiarity of the customers is the number who are looking around for something cheap and desirable as an investment, thereby showing that the speculator is again in the field.

"The coming season promises to be a very active one in the real estate line. I think Toledo will make a fine showing for the year's work. The number of new real estate firms also shows a growing interest in real estate matters, with the confidence that 'there is money in it.' How is our loan company doing? Never better. Our receipts last year exceeded $200,000, and thus far this year has increased fully 50 per cent.—a good demand for money. Yes, parties building and about to build readily take all our surplus funds."

Serious Charges Made by Passengers Against the Actions of the Crew of the Versailles.

Colon, Aspinwall, March 3.—Parties ariving here from Carthagena by the French trans-Atlantique steamer Versailles, on her last voyage, state that shortly after the vessel left that port one of the passengers, an American named O. W. Wentworth, died suddenly, and that his remains were thrown overboard some four hours before the latter port was made and without allowing any of the American or English passengers of whom there were many on board, an opportunity of assisting at the last offices.

It was understood among the English-speaking passengers that Wentworth had a comparatively large amount of American gold and greenbacks in his possession together with a quantity of Colombian silver, but the officers of the Versailles failed either to make a report of the man's death or turn over his effects to the American consul on arrival at this port.

Santa Fe, N. M., March 3.—The republican territorial committee fixed April 14 at Silver City for the convention to select delegates to Minneapolis. On motion of T. B. Oliver Curtis Perry a Much Wanted Man.

Since His Arrest He Is Charged With Crimes Committed All Over the Country.

Chicago, March 3.—An Inter-Ocean special from Butte, Mont., says: Oliver Curtis Perry, the bold highwayman who went through an express car on a New York Central train 10 days ago, is wanted in Montana. He is believed to be the man who killed Andy McCoy in Georgetown, Deer Lodge county, in 1887 or 1888. McCoy engaged in a barroom quarrel with one Oliver C. Perry, who picked up a cuspidor, hit him on the head and killed him. Perry made his escape, and although a large reward was offered he was never again heard from.

THE OLD NATIONAL ROAD.

One of the most interesting links in this country between the past and the present is the old National Turnpike from Baltimore to the Ohio river, writes Walter McCann, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for March. Half a century ago this was the great avenue of travel and commerce between the East and the West; but since the introduction of railroads it has lost its importance, and has gradually fallen, if not into decay, at least into something too much like neglect. In many places the counties through which it passes have disregarded its claims of attention, and it has subsided into a state of dilapidation, and almost of ruin. The great flood of 1889 here and there did much damage, and it is doubtful if some of these broken places will ever be mended. There is no longer the same practical interest in preserving this majestic highway which once existed, although, as Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania recently pointed out, the care of the public roads is at all times one of the most important of civil duties.

Associations of deeply interesting character, relating to the early history of the country, cluster about the old National Road. The most striking of these, perhaps, is the story of Braddock's famous and disastrous march; for his route to the West, where his army met with misfortune and his own career came to so melancholy a close, lay almost directly alongside the National Pike, and the two cross each other in a number of places. The military student and the antiquarian find pleasure in tracing the course of famous expeditions. There is a fascination in seeking to bring to light again the nearly obliterated footprints of those who formed part of these momentous undertakings and in studying the vast difficulties overcome and obstacles surmounted.

There has always been among Americans a kindly feeling for the memory of General Braddock, partly from the association of Washington with the most melancholy portion of his career. His faults were those of his peculiar education. Wrongheaded, obstinate and narrow-minded, he was yet brave and warm-hearted; and strict as was his discipline, his officers seem to have had a genuine liking for him. For many years travelers have gone out of their way to pay a visit to the spot where lie his remains.

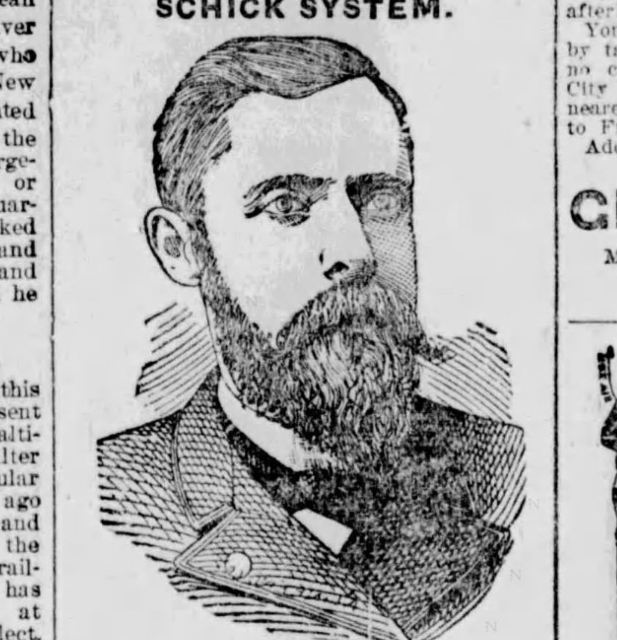
DR. KARL VIRCHOW SCHICK

HIS ARRIVAL IN TOLEDO.

A man whose name has been made famous as the great Germ Discoverer of the Present Century.

Has he Discovered the Fountain of Perpetual Youth?

His methods now known as the SCHICK SYSTEM.



Dr. Schick has engaged Parlors at the Hotel Jefferson, where any one desirous of consulting him may do so Monday, March 7, to Thursday, March 31, inclusive.

Consultation, Examination & Treatment FREE.

The time has come when men of genius are being recognized, and wherever they have made any new discovery in art or science that benefits all mankind, the people are ever ready to appreciate it and investigate their claims.

During the last decade many new and valuable discoveries have been made in the healing art, both in this country and in Europe; but none have been more potent and valuable than the late discoveries of the great German physician, Dr. Karl Virchow Schick, in the germ treatment of chronic diseases. So rapidly did the sufferers from all forms of chronic diseases recover under this new treatment that within four months after the discovery was made, sixty-one physicians had purchased his formula, and were using it to the exclusion of all others. Eight months later his fame had spread throughout all Europe as well as this country. The entire medical world is converted to his faith, and 806 physicians have adopted his methods.

Arrangements have already been consummated for building a large Institute bearing his name at Chicago, also a building has been leased for the same purpose at Cincinnati, 103 Garfield Place, and opened to the public Jan. 1st last. The first Institution of the kind was opened in Boston, at 1508 Washington St., a year ago, and so overwhelming a demonstration did Dr. Schick receive from the sick and suffering that he has been encouraged to continue with the results at Cincinnati and Chicago as stated above. So numerous have been the letters of inquiry from every city in Ohio as to how they could obtain this treatment, what it was, and what it would do, Dr. Schick finally consented to adopt the advice of his manager, and make a visit to Toledo, and thus give those who desired an opportunity to see him personally.

It is certainly very gratifying that we are able to state to all our readers that Dr. Karl Virchow Schick will be in Toledo, on Monday, March 7, 1892, and remain until March 31, at the Hotel Jefferson. All those who are suffering from any form of chronic diseases may during the week commencing Monday, March 7, have an opportunity to see and consult with this great scientist, who certainly has astonished the entire German Empire with the discovery that a Germ was the cause of all chronic as well as acute diseases, and that he could entirely remove the same without the knife or any of the old time honored methods.

On his arrival in Boston his fame had so far preceded that all day long during consultation hours the streets about resounded with the rumbling of carriages filled with suffering wealth, fashion and intellect of New England, who mingled with those whose poverty but increased their ills, all bound for the now famous doctor whose scientific knowledge of the microscope had developed the deadly Germ, which through the ignorance of the medical fraternity had carried so many to an untimely grave. Surely in the hands of this doctor the most insidious and mysterious diseases vanish like the winds, and his skill turns the deathbed into a pillow of health.

The continually increasing tales of wonder from those who have been cured of Cancer and Consumption in its apparent last stages, Tumors located in any part of the body (without operation), Paralysis, Epilepsy, Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Deafness, Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Nervous Prostration, and in fact all chronic and acute diseases, with those peculiar to women, that have long since baffled the time honored remedies, seem to yield like magic to the Schick system. Owing to the large number of persons unable to see the doctor during his stay in the eastern cities, he has consented to lengthen his hours of consultation each day, and can therefore be seen in our city from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M., and 7 to 8 Eve. As these are the only days that can be devoted to this city, it is especially desired that we say to our readers, Dr. Schick has consented to spend the above time at Toledo, but no other city or town will be visited as he returns at once to his Institute in Cincinnati.

For the purpose of extending his already world-wide popularity, Dr. Schick will, commencing March 7, and continuing every day until March 31, give to all those who desire such examination, advice and treatment, as may be indicated in each individual case, entirely free of charge; thus giving sufferers from all forms of chronic diseases personal attention, and there by all the advantages of this new system, which has worked such marvelous cures in Boston, Cincinnati and vicinity. Although the time and expense to him in giving this free treatment will cost $5000, yet he feels that the number he will treat will be so large, the cures he will make so varied, the good he will do will cover so large a field, that the advertisement will be double what could be obtained with the expenditure of $10,000 in any other way. He also hopes to bring to the notice of all invalids his elegant Sanitarium as well as his special system of practice. All that he asks in return is that every patient treated will appoint themselves a committee of one to state to all their friends the results obtained in their individual cases by the Schick System.

DULL DAY IN COLUMBUS.

Two Bills Introduced in the House

To Protect Motor Men From the Cold.

The Attorney Fee Bill Now a Law—Miscellaneous Mention From the Capital of the Buckeye State.

Columbus, March 3.—(Special)—The legislature did not do anything yesterday except take a free ride and meal at the expense of the faculty of the Ohio State University and the company was so pleasant out on the hill that the presiding officers failed to return to their respective bodies in time to call them to order.

While the law-makers are enjoying themselves representatives of corporations are laying around watching their movements on certain measures now before this legislature.

The one that seems to attract the most attention at the present time and one that will be pushed to a passage, if possible, is the bill by Mr. Spencer, of Cuyahoga county.

It is as follows:

"The council of any municipal corporation may grant to any street railroad company now or hereafter existing and operating a street railroad within the corporation making such grant the right to maintain and operate such street railroad, and any and all extensions thereof for a period of ninety-nine years, upon such street railroad company agreeing with the council of such municipal corporation to pay a certain percentage of its gross receipts to the treasurer of such municipal corporation for the use of such corporation, and upon any street railroad company agreeing with a municipal corporation as herein provided; the said sum so to be paid shall be in lieu of all rentals, license fees, special taxes and assessments in any manner to be assessed or imposed upon such street railroad company, but shall in no wise relieve any street railroad company from any general, state, county or municipal taxes."

To Protect Motormen.

Senator Abbott has introduced a bill requiring all street car companies throughout the state to provide the front ends of their cars with screens for the protection of drivers or motermen.

It also stipulates that the screens shall be constructed wholly or in part of glass or other transparent material that will give the man at the front end an unobstructed view ahead but which shall give to him complete protection against wind and storm.

A penalty of from $100 to $500 is provided for each offense, and a violation continued for more than two months after the act becomes operative is made sufficient cause for a forfeiture of the charter of the offending company and county prosecutor's are charged with the enforcement of the law.

Protecting Life of Pedestrians.

Representative Pudney has introduced a bill which provides that all street railway companies shall place in front of all their cars guard rails of either iron or wood, so that if persons should be knocked down they would not fall in under the wheels, or rather this protection would roll the person on the ground until the car was stopped.

Attorneys for Workingmen.

The senate having concurred in the amendments to the Von Seggron bill, it is now a law.

It provides that in suits for wages before a justice of the peace, an amount not exceeding $5 shall be taxed in the cost to pay attorney fees of the plaintiff when judgment is rendered for the full amount of the claim. The same senator has another bill of similar nature which is a law and gives the plaintiff in such suits $15 for attorney's fees when an appeal is taken in action for wages.

Free School Books.

The subject of free school books will again loom up in the halls of legislature, as the legislative committee of the State Trades' assembly is preparing a bill to be introduced having the features of many laws now in existence in other states.

It will provide for the purchase by the state of all books used in the public schools, which shall be furnished free to the pupils, and the text books shall be uniform, thereby preventing frequent change at great expense to the state.

Too Much Law.

Senator Von Segern, of Hamilton county, has a bill to abolish the superior court of that county. As they now have seven common pleas judges and a circuit court, the senator thinks there are enough judges to keep the dockets clear.

New Corporations.

The following articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state to-day: The Alliance Standard Review Publishing company, Alliance, increase of capital stock from $16,000 to $25,000; the Teamsters' and Draymen's union, No. 5332, of Mansfield, O.; the M. Goldsmith company, Cincinnati, capital stock $20,000; the Crossley Car Brake company, Cleveland, capital stock $25,000; the Lagonda Club company, Springfield, capital stock $25,000; the German and English Evangelical Lutheran Martin Luther church, Toledo; the Danforth-Procter Lumber company, Mansfield, amendment enlarging purposes.

Taxing Pipe Lines.

Representative James has introduced a bill which repeals the law passed at the last session, introduced by Senator Perry Adams, which exempts natural gas pipes supplying cities from taxation.

The law was passed chiefly for the benefit of Senator Adams' home city of Tiffin, but it greatly benefits Toledo and Fostoria pipe lines.

Warden James.

The new penitentiary board had a meeting in the Neil house last night to consider the question of appointments. The board was closeted all evening with Col. C. C. White, of Wellston, and about 11 o'clock it was announced that Col. James had been elected warden and that no further appointments will be made for some time. The lobby of the hotel was crowded with applicants for office, who must wait awhile longer to know their fate.

Miller Must Go.

There is a movement afoot among a number of republican representatives to oust State School Commissioner C. C. Miller.

Refused a Pardon.

Board of pardons this morning rejected the application of Charles Eagan, of Lucas county, convicted at October 1890 term, of grand larceny and given a two years' sentences.

Bills Passed the Senate.

Mr. Beebe—To provide that all examination questions for examination of teachers shall be prepared by the state board of examiners, and that they shall be used by county examiners.

Mr. Burns—To provide for the construction of pounds in cities and incorporated villages.

Mr. Welch—Amending the present law by making it unlawful for any person to wear the badge of the G. A. R., or of any other secret society unless they are members of such societies or organizations.

Mr. Phillips—Providing that the contest of elections of state and judicial officers shall be heard by circuit courts of the state instead of by the senate.

Notes.

The house has adopted a resolution to furnish seventy-five hundred copies of the hundred year book. The senate has postponed consideration of the workmen bill abolishing townships boards of education until next Tuesday.

A class of 50 was examined for admission to practice in law. Thirty-seven passed and 16 failed. The following were successful from northern Ohio: Alexander Kirskadden, Louis Skrunsewfky, Tiffin; C. C. Biglow, Defiance; E. D. McKeeson, North Baltimore.

The Llewelyn bill consolidating geological reports has passed the house.

Gov. McKinley has appointed John A. Williamson trustee of the asylum for feeble minded youth.

GAVE HIM A START.

The French Chamber Approves the Government Program.

Paris, March 3.—The new premier, M. Loubet, read in the chamber of deputies today a statement of his policy. It was a colorless program and was coldly received.

Replying to a question from the right, Minister Ribot denied that negotiations with the vatican were on foot.

The chamber, by a vote of 341 to 91, approved the government's program.

HE CARRIED A GUN.

An Alabama Minister Who Knew How to Shoot.

Birmingham, Ala., March 3.—In Green county, Rev. John Calvin, a Methodist preacher, this morning shot and killed Wm. Herdy, a deacon in the church, and fatally wounded David Smith, brother-in-law of Herdy.

Herdy suspected Calvin of being intimate with his (Herdy's) wife and attacked him with a cane, when Calvin drew a pistol and fired five shots with the above result. Calvin is in jail at Eutaw.

THE LENTEN SEASON.

Episcopalians Will Join in Service at Trinity.

Rev. Scadding's Remarks at To-Day's Service—Arrangements for the Days to Come—A Departure.

A departure in lenten services will be made by the Episcopalians of Toledo this year, something on the order of those so successfully carried out at New York and Buffalo heretofore. Every day during lent there will be short services at Trinity church, commencing at five minutes past noon, in which all members of Episcopal church are requested to participate.

On Mondays, Rev. J. W. Sykes will speak, taking for his subject, "Seven Words From the Cross;" Tuesdays, Rev. E. Watt; Wednesdays, Rev. D. A. Bonnar, subject, "Work of the Holy Spirit;" Fridays, Rev. W. C. Hopkins; Thursdays and Saturdays, clergymen from Columbus, Cleveland and Detroit will deliver short addresses.

Also, during lent the church will be open from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 4 to 6 p. m., for prayer and meditation.

At the first service to-day the attendance was good. Rev. Scadding delivered an address introductory to the series, taking for his text Christ's words to the disciples, "Behold we go up to Jerusalem." He said in substance: "The principles of lent are manifold, but underlying all others is one that is brought most forcibly to our minds and that is that we should go up to Jerusalem, as did Jesus. For him it meant the cross, the passion and the grave; for us it means the crown, the glory and the throne. Now is the time we should prepare for that journey to a similar Jerusalem. There is one great obstacle, however, and that is spiritual blindness. Blind Bartimeus sat by the wayside begging and did not see or was not able to join those going, pressing forward to the city. We to-day are like unto this blind beggar; we are blind spiritually. There is one remedy. Jesus of Nazareth passeth by. We have but to call to him and he will stop and open the eyes of the blind and heal and comfort the sick of heart. Now is this opportunity offered us and surely it will not be unheeded."

To-morrow Rev. W. C. Hopkins, of Grace church, will deliver the address at the noonday service at Trinity.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Small fire at 8:30 this morning caused about $200 damage to a vacant frame house at 361 Wabash street.

IN CONGRESS TO-DAY.

Farmer Watson Did Not Sell His Vote.

The Idaho Senatorial Case Still on in the Upper Branch in Washington.

Washington, March 3.—There was a ripple of excitement this morning when the house assembled.

Mr. Watson, (farmers' alliance), of Georgia, rose to a question of personal privilege and sent to the desk a recent copy of the Atlanta Constitution, containing an article, written by E. W. Barrett, its Washington correspondent, and clerk of Speaker Crisp, charging him (Watson) with having voted with the republicans in the Craig-Stewart election case for financial considerations and the promises of money from the republicans to aid in his next campaign. With considerable feeling, Mr. Watson denounced the article as false in every particular and the insinuations therin as cowardly.

In the Senate.

In the senate the house bill to credit Aquilla Jones, sr., late postmaster at Indianapolis, Ind., with $2,348, stolen in 1888, was taken up and passed.

The senate resumed the Idaho contested election case.

Mr. Call postponed the motion of which he had given notice with respect to an inquiry into the attempted interference of railroad corporations with the late senatorial election in Florida until Monday next.

Mr. Gray addressed the senate on the Idaho case in support of the minority report in favor of the contestant.

He was remanded to Monday.

THE AMERICAN HERCULES

Who Was So Strong He Could Not Let Go

Of the Valuables Belonging to Mrs. Bernstein.

The Lady in the Case Fainted When Some of Her Love Letters Were Read by the Cruel Barristers.

London, March 3.—The case of Carl Sampson, known as the "American Hercules," who was arrested in New York a few weeks ago on a requisition issued by the British authorities, who charged him with obtaining certain diamond jewelry and £770 in money from Mrs. Margaret Bernstein, of this city, on false pretenses, and brought back to England, was further heard in Westminster police court this morning.

There was a very large attendance, and a great deal of interest was shown in the proceedings.

Mrs. Bernstein, it will be remembered, made the acquaintance of Sampson while he was performing his feats of strength at the Royal Aquarium music hall. It is stated that she became enamored of him and sought to be constantly in his company.

Her husband separated from her and applied for a divorce on the ground of adultery, naming Sampson and one Turner as the co-respondents.

During Mrs. Bernstein's acquaintance with Sampson, it is stated that he borrowed money and jewelry from her for certain purposes, promising to return the valuables when those purposes were accomplished.

The day previous to Sampson's departure Mrs. Bernstein and taking the money ure from England for New York, he visand jewels out of his pocket, laid them on a table in Mrs. Bernstein's room.

She barely glanced at them when he first showed them, and then thought no more about them. Sampson made a short call and then said farewell, Mrs. Bernstein going to the door of her lodgings with him and wishing him bon voyage.

Some hours after Sampson's departure Mrs. Bernstein went to the table on which her money and jewels had been deposited by the strong man, but to her amazement found they had vainshed.

After due reflection Mrs. Bernstein made up her mind that Sampson had, by some sleight-of-hand performance, taken possession of the valuables after he deposited them on her table. She was greatly incensed at this "mean trick" and lodged a complaint with the police authorities. A warrant was issued for Sampson's arrest, but before it could be served he had sailed for New York.

At the beginning of the proceedings this morning Mrs. Bernstein took the witness stand. She presented a charming picture attired in a close-fitting tailor-made gown which set off her plump figure to much advantage. On her head she wore a hat of the new spring pattern, the graceful arrangement of flowers and laces giving her pretty face additional charm.

Mrs. Bernstein gave her testimony in a clear voice. She was self-possessed and confident in manner and did not appear to mind the hundreds of curious eyes that were gazing at her.

Mrs. Bernstein claimed her relations with Sampson were those of a lender only. Various love letters of hers were read and she became so much agitated that she fainted. The case was adjourned till Saturday.

HIS UNLUCKY PLANET.

"Oh, yes, I know it's all my own fault," Charley Cleve said. "Whose else should it be? But I'm disinherited, all the same. I've no more chance of coming into that fertile farm land than—than yonder Italian organ grinder, who is turning the crank so perseveringly under the deaf Squire Homer's back kitchen window."

"Oh, Charlie!" said Bess, clasping her hands despairingly together.

"I didn't expect much else," went on Mr. Cleve, in a rollicking, light-hearted sort of way. "I was born under an unlucky star, Saturn or Mars, or one of those planets that never bring a fellow any good. You can't expect a star to reverse its order on my account, can you?"

"But, Charley—"

"Just wait until you hear the full account of my atrocities. I wasn't so much to blame for treading on the cat—anyone might have done that. I don't think she laid that up against me. And when I broke down the old cherrywood chair that had belonged to her grandfather—that was a mere question of weight. And I mended it for her, too. But when the broiled ham for breakfast had such a queer taste to it—and I had to confess that I had been smoking up the chimney where it hung—"

"Oh, Charley!"

"How was I to know that she made a storehouse of the back room chimney? Folks in Philadelphia don't do that sort of thing. And she wouldn't tolerate tobacco in any shape—she let me know that at the very outset!"

Bess shook her head mournfully.

"You know I told you, Charley—" she began.

"Yes, my dear little guardian angel—but I give you my word, I'll confine myself to cigarettes for the future, and never smoke one within a quarter of a mile of the house. But listen. The next thing I did was to upset her whole churning of cream. It hung half way down the well, don't you see, and when I came home famished with thirst, and jerked the bucket down—well, the first thing I heard was Cousin Sarepta screaming like mad. 'Is it burglars?' said I, seizing up my blackthorn stick, 'or is it fire?' And I had plunged into the house, and put my foot—literally, not metaphorically—into the old lady's baking of custard pies, that she had set on the cellar floor to cool, before she could make me understand. But the last straw that broke the camel's back was the old gray goose."

"'The old gray goose,' Charley! Surely nothing has ever happened to that!"

Mr Cleve shook his head.

"The very worst has happened," said he. "I've shot it!"

"Oh, Charley!"

The young man laughed bitterly and spouted the lines:

"'Why look'st thou so? With my cross-bow
I shot the albatross!'"

"Yes I did. Out wild-duck hunting in the marshes. I thought it was rather a mammoth specimen, when I leveled the trigger; and when Don brought it to me my heart sank to the very soles of my boots. I had half an idea of burying the creature out among the salt grasses, and saying never a word. But that would have been a sneaking sort of dodge. The Cleves can do plenty of shabby things, but they never lie outright. So I brought it home with the string of wild birds. 'I'm very sorry, Cousin Sarepta,' said I, 'but I've shot your old goose. I'll replace it with the finest pair to be had in Salt Inlet.' 'Replace it!' says she; and then, to be sure, there was a scene. She set a good deal of store by that old gray goose, you know."

"Yes, I know," said Bessie, resignedly. "It was 20 years old. She raised it herself in a basket by the kitchen fire, and it ate corn daily out of her own hand. She wouldn't have taken $20 for that old goose. No, nor $50, I do believe."

"So, added Charley, with a particularly expressive shrug of the shoulders, "she has turned me out of doors. She called me a loafer and a shiftless ne'er-do-weel, and I dare say she was right. I couldn't contradict her, so I didn't try. She recommended me to go about my business; so I did. And here I am. I've telegraphed to Philadelphia for the taxidermist. That was all I could do. Do you suppose, Bess, your father would take me to board for eight days? I've just eight days left of my vacation, and there'll be such a lot of questions asked if I come home in advance of time. I wouldn't advise you to have a word to say to me. I dare say I shall set fire to the house, or poison the family, or shoot somebody by mistake. What can be expected of a fellow that was born under an unlucky planet?"

Bess Warden laughed cheerily.

"Father will risk it, I am sure," said she. "We haven't a great deal of spare room, but mother will make up a cot bed in the room with the boys, and if you can put up with our plain way of living—"

He stopped her mouth with a kiss.

"You are an angel, Bess," said he.

The kindly Warden family did their best to console old Miss Sarepta Smith's discarded relation, and to make the last portion of his vacation a trifle pleasanter than the first had been. But Doctor Warden shook his frost-white head.

"I don't like long engagements," said he. "And Bess can't marry a man on any $12 a week."

"But, father, Charley will do better in time."

"If it pleases the unlucky planet," interrupted Charley.

"Well, wait until the better time comes."

"Oh, we don't mind waiting!" cried Bess.

"Speak for yourself, if you please," murmured Charley.

"We've a lifetime before us," asseverated Bess: "and, in the meantime, Charley, we'll go out duck shooting tomorrow, and I'll row you through the Silver Channels to the best ground on all the coast."

On the night before Mr. Cleve's time was up, the lovers, talking to each other late in the autumnal starlight on the porch, saw a red glare in the sky above the privet hedge.

"It's a bonfire," said Charley.

"It's Miss Sarepta Smith's house" shrieked Bess. "Help! Help! Fire! Water! Oh, why don't somebody come!"

"Call your father and the boys!" said Charley, flinging off his coat. "I'll jump the fence and take the short cut. She's all alone in the house, poor thing!"

At Salt Inlet they had neither steam fire engines nor patent extinguishers. By the time the volunteer company had dragged the rickety old engine and hose cart out of their shed and hoisted them up the hill, the ancient house where Sarepta Smith had been born was in ruins and the old woman herself, carried in a big chair over to the Warden House, was lamenting herself that she, too, had not gone also.

"Seems like I couldn't live nowhere else," said she. "And I'm an old woman—a very old woman."

Bess Warden gave up her own room to Miss Sarepta. Every one did what he could to make her comfortable, but the only sign she evinced of pleasure was when Charley Cleve brought in the old gray goose, stiffly mounted on an imitation mossy ground. Her dim eyes lighted up.

"I am glad you saved that, Charles," said she.

"I found it among a heap of other things," said Charley. "And I thought you'd like to have it. See, here are your spectacles, too, and the old Bible, with the leaves all right, and the cover only a little charred."

Miss Sarepta looked feebly from one relic to another.

"I'm glad," said she, "very glad. It was thoughtful of you, Charles. I'm sorry I called you them names. I take 'em all back."

"Oh, never mind the names," said Charley. "At all events, you can't lay this fire to me!"

"No," said Sarepta, "it was the mice playin' on the closet shelf where I kept the matches. I'd laid up to set a trap but I forgot. And I should ha' been burned in my bed if it hadn't been for you, Charles. I allays dreaded a death by fire!"

Old Miss Sarepta lay very quietly for a day or two, with the gray goose foding its wing at her bed head, and the Bible and spectacles on a stand beside her pillow.

"Charles shall have the gray goose," said she, one evening. "It'll help furnish his house. And it'll show I don't bear no malice on account of his shootin' it. And the specks and the Bible Bess must keep. An old Bible brings every one luck!"

She died before daybreak. If there was any will—and Miss Sarepta was always believed to be a well-to-do, business woman—it was destroyed in the flames. The old place—three-and-forty acres—went to a cousin nearer of kin than Charles Cleve.

"My unlucky planet again," said Charley, with a grimace. "Well, never mind, Bess; it's only wating a little longer. We've got a Bible and a pair of spectacles, after all."

"And a stuffed gray goose," said Bess.

"Oh, hang the goose!" said Charley. "It's neither useful nor ornamental. Let's shy it out into the orchard;" and he seized it by one leg.

"Oh, stop, Charley!" cried thrifty Bess. "Let's save the feathers for a pillow."

"They're full of arsenic and such stuff."

"All the better for keeping out moths," retorted Bess. "I'll pack them into a bag, and— Oh, Charley, what is this?"

A piece of the old gray goose's epidermis had come off with the first handful of feathers. Underneath it was something like dull-green paper, packed in layers.

"Hello!" said Charley. "Why—they're bills! They're—money! Look here! Am I dreaming?"

It was true. The old gray goose was stuffed full of new, crisp greenbacks. Sarepta Smith's eccentricities had not ceased with her death. There had been method in her words when she gave Charley Cleve this memorial of his own blunder, as a peace-offering.

"Five hundred dollars!" said he. "I say, Bess, isn't it almost enough to get married upon? We'll do it very quietly, you know."

"Don't talk nonsense, Charley."

"But look in the old Bible, Bess. Who knows what may be hidden there?"

Nothing was hidden there. Apparently Miss Sarepta had confined her savings bank idea to the old gray goose.

Charley Cleve considered deeply.

"Five hundred dollars won't go very far in the city," said he; "and in a Trust company, where I'm clerking it, a fellow may grub away for 20 years without any chance for promotion. I'll cut city life, Bess, if you say so, and invest this money in the first payment on a little fruit farm out here at Salt Inlet."

Bess' face lighted up.

"Close to my old home!" she cried. "Oh, Charley, I do 'say so!'"

And ten years after their wedding day, when the great railway vein had throbbed through their land, and the "little fruit farm" was cut up into village lots, the thriving young farmer looked at his wife with a smile.

"It all comes of the old gray goose, Bess," said he.

"The unlucky planet was a lucky one after all," laughed Bess.

RICH WOMEN'S IDLE HOURS.

"How do wealthy women spend their idle hours?" was a question propounded to me by a young friend a few days ago.

"Do you think they really have an idle time?" I said in reply.

"Oh, yes," my questioner replied. "I am sure they have."

I remembered the query some days after, and having occasion to call upon some wealthy women of the exclusive set, I inquired as to their idle hour indulgences.

One woman informed me that she made all her own underwear, which upon seeing, I found showed evidence of an accomplished needle; another lady said she painted; another was interested in school matters and dabbled in literature, and before I got through I came to the conclusion that wealthy women were as industrious, considering the many social calls upon them, as working women.—Philadelphia Record.

from the English fleet, all of which resulted in heavy loss to the enemy.

The Constellation has not been in action since the war of 1812, but so long as wooden vessels continued in vogue she was a model of her class, being a swift sailer and very stanch in severe weather. In 1813, while cruising in the Mediterranean, she rode out a furious gale in which a French 80-gun ship foundered. The next year she outsailed in the same sea an entire British fleet. As late as 1833, while being used as a practice ship by the naval cadets, the Constellation made 13 knots an hour along the edge of the Gulf stream throughout an entire forenoon. The cadets have used her for practice now for many years, but a new and modern cruiser is being built for them, so that the old Constellation's days are nearly over.—Springfield Republican.

CHAUNCEY AND THE DANCER.

Carmencita charmed the audience with her dancing, and was repeatedly encored. A story is told of her becoming displeased at the small size of the dressing-room assigned to her, and refusing to appear, untill Chauncy Depew was induced to act as peacemaker. By the aid of an interpreter he told the black-eyed Spaniard that as he came in at the door of the theatre he heard a lady ask at the box-office:

"Is Mr. Depew going to speak?"

"Yes ma'am," replied the treasurer.

"Is Carmencita going to dance?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Then give me two seats," she said.

"You see, my dear senorita, you are just as great an attraction as I. Besides, I desire to see you dance myself."

That settled it. Carmencita danced.—New York Journalist.

WITH THE ALLIGATORS.

"The largest school of alligators I ever saw," said the Captain, in response to an inquiry, 'was on the Alabama, near the point where the Tombigbee flows into that stream. We had run the Ganges up the former river, which we were told was swarming with 'gators, and found the animals so thick at the point I speak of that we struck one with every half turn of the wheel. They split the paddles into kindling wood with their teeth, snapped at the guards of our little craft and we had actualy to club them with sticks to keep the creatures from climbing into the boat. The banks were overflowed on both sides and being unable to proceed further we ran the nose of our steamer up to a tree and made fast to it for the night, which was one of horror to us all. The splashing of the water caused by the floundering saurians and their incessant barking continued untill daylight, when the entire school made for a rice swamp about half a mile away, very much to our gratification I assure you."

COROT'S FRIENDSHIP.

A few months before Corot's death his friend Francois Millet, the painter of "The Angelus," died, leaving a widow and 11 children almost penniless. The art world was moved, and the state was induced to give a pension to Millet's wife. Corot finding the sum insufficient, added to it an annual allowance of 1,000 francs. Almost immediately after this, feeling his own health decline rapidly, he desired to secure the widow of his friend against the loss of this assistance consequent upon his own death; therefore he turned over to her the capital necessary to give her this annual income for the rest of her life, and sent it to her with these words: "In this way, I am sure that in no case of misfortune may you have to suffer inconvenience." His death which occurred soon after, shows this to have been a wise consideration.—New England Magazine.
